Cornerstone Laid For Auditorium Of Woman's Club

Impressive Exercises Conducted Saturday Afternoon by Leading Masons.

Past presidents of the Atlanta Woman's club, representatives of the Georgia Federation of Woman's clubs, prominent Masons and about 500 of the leading citizens of Atlanta took part in the outdoor ceremony of laving the cornerauditorium Saturday afternoon at the clubhouse, 946 Peachtree street

Men and women who have been nstrumental in organizing and developing the club and in planning for the auditorium addressed the audience grouped under the trees at the side of the club building. Following brief remarks by the numerous speakers, representatives of the Georgia lodge of Free and Accepted Masons led a procession to the cornerstone at the rear of the building and the block was lowered into place with all the formal ceremony of Masonry.

Mrs. Irving H. Thomas, president of the club, in whose honor the auditorium has been named, presided when the ceremonies opened, and then gave way to Mrs. B. M. Boychairman of the committee which is managing the erection of he new structure. Mrs. Thomas, in relinquishing control of the eeting, paid a glowing tribute to the efforts of Mrs. Boykin and Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, both vice presidents of the club, without whose would not have become a reality.

Mrs. Thomas Speaks. of Frankfort, which was signed May 10, 1871. M. Thiers, the French representative, with infinite toil, and after journeys from court to court of Europe, at last arranged for this conference. He has been telling Bismarck that "not a stone of a fortress or an inch of territory" will France cede. France was, however, in sore straits and completely at the mercy of Germany, and so, when Bismarck, repre-

One can almost see the iron enter his soul as Bismarck sets the irrevocable price of peace. History repeats itself, with conditions exactly reversed, fifty years later, almost to the day, for before May 12, 1921, Germany must accept the terms of the allies or suffer the consequences.

TO DISCUSS PLANS

Heads of All Civic and Commercial Organizations Will Be Invited to Attend Meeting.

$1,000,000 DEFICIT NOW FACED BY CITY

Mayor Key Will Be Asked to Speak and Comptroller West to Explain Financial Situation.

Confronted with the danger of an enforced closing of the Atlanta public schools this fall, the board of education and Superintendent of Schools W. F. Dykes on Saturday formulated a call to the heads of the city's civic and commercial or-ganizations. inviting them to a public discussion of the situation next Tuesday morning at city hall. The city is threatened with a deficit of $1,000,000 by the end of the manic aid for the schools, because already numerous special appropriations are being cut off and wages of the common labor slashed in order that current expenses may be met. A shortage of approximately $430,000 exists in the school department.

This is the problem which the school officials have decided to lay before the public in the hope that plan may be found to avert the calamitous course of closing.

All Interests Invited. Since all interests are directly conwill be asked to participate in the conference. Invitations will be sent to the Federation of Women's clubs, the Federation of Trades, the Rotary club, the chamber of commerce, the Kiwanis club. the Lions' club. the Atlanta Woman's club, the Atlanta Real Estate board, the Civitan club. the Ad Men's club, the Retail Merchants' association, the Merchants' and Manufacturers' association, the Ministers Evangelical association, and other bodies.

Mayor Key will be asked to be present and speak on the situation, and City Comptroller B. Graham West will be requested to attend

The mayor and school officials, since Atlanta was enjoined from collecting the emergency tax of oneeighth of 1 per cent levied by council, have viewed the prospect with grave apprehension.

There is one pending measure of relief, and if that is defeated the last resort is a direct appeal to the people. The measure which would furnish revenue to finance the city and the schools is a proposed charter amendment to raise Atlanta's ad valorem tax rate from $1.25 on the $100 to $1.50. Will Favor Proposal

The proposal is expected to be favored by a big majority at the next session of city council, and the legislature will then be asked to enact the necessary charter amendment. To obviate shutting down the schools the tax act would have to be made effective this year. This reque.. is one provision of the reso-who properly come under the jurisdiction of other international unions."

The Railroad Shop Laborers' union was suspended from the federation in December, 1919, because of its alleged disregard for the jurisdictional rights of the building trades organization.

J. B. Mallory, grand vice president of the Maintenance of Way union, who received the verdict of the Building Trades council, said he would immediately take the matter up with the other grand officers of the organization. He pointed out that it would take from eight to twelve months to make the transfer if was decided to obey the request of the council and that between 25,000 and 30,000 members would be lost by his organization.

Officials of the union declared that the matter would probably be fought out on the floor of the convention in Denver in June and the ultimatum of the council disregarded for the present.

Charge Denied.

The executive council of the American Federation of Labor, which is also in session here, to-day decided to appoint a committee to investigate the jurisdictional dispute between the International Alliance of Stage Employees and the Building Trades council protested to the federation council that the alliance has not given up jurisdiction over construction work in the moving picture studios on the Pacific coast and demand the suspension of the stage employees unless they discontinue further encroachments.

A committee composed of representatives of the executive council, the stage employees and building trades will visit Los Angeles and make a report to the council at Denver.

Since that time Sowers has been sought in connection with the crime. Although given an accurate description of their man, police were unable to locate him until he suddenly appeared Saturday night.

The witnesses stated at the time that an argument had arisen between Nichols and Sowers over a quantity of whisky, resulting in the tragedy. One witness further stated that earlier in the day on October 16 Sowers had assaulted him and escaped with $25 in cash, the affair taking place oh Weilburn street.

Sowers was arrested on a charge of being drunk and disorderly, and it was not until he reached police station that it was found he was wanted on the killing charge.

Satisfied With Progress.

Assistant District Attorney Clem Powers, of Macon. stated that Vincent Hughes, head of the bursau, was in Macon Saturday, and the two had held a long conference over the prosecution of peonage cases in the southern district. Hughes, he said, had expressed himself as highly satisfied with the progress being made and the co-operation he was receiving.

The rumors current in Atlanta Saturday were to the effect that owing to the attitude of District Attorney, Bennett, the federal investigators had taken the position that evidence in peonage cases submitted to the attorney had not been properly presented to the grand jury.

After indicting Williams and his three sons on charges of peonage, the grand jury made the following report to Federal Judge Evans.

Resolutions Passed.

Whereas, it has been the duty of this grand jury to go into and investigate peonage cases and that it has come to the attention of this honorable body that the newspapers have continually reported various numbers of cases throughout the state of Georgia, and that there seems to warranted reports and rumors abroad which tend to create an erroneous impression, therefore be it

Resolved, That we make the following statement:

Of the peonage cases brought to the attention of this body, it is found that in only one or two instances was there sufficient evidence to warrant this body finding a true bill.

Further, That this body deplores and denounces any condition of peonage wherever it is found to exist, and, further, deplores the fact that there have been so many unwarranted rumors of conditions of peonage in the state of Georgia where evidence brought out shows conclusively that they do not exist.

In view of the number of cases reported submitted to the jury, it is thought that these recommendations may have been one of the causes of the rumors of frictions, especially since it is understood that United States Attorney Bennett takes the position that the mere charges of peonage should not be made public until thoroughly inmade public until thoroughly investigated and foud to be true.

tional amendments and an attack on the measure by Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi.

Senator Ashurst, democrat, Arizona, proposed that the duty of seven cents a pound on long staple cotton be increased to twenty cents, while Senator Jones, democrat. New Mexico, moved for a tariff of fifteen per cent ad valorem on all importations of hides. The amendments will be taken up later.

In his attack on the bill, Senator Harrison told the senate congress was pursuing the wrong course in seeking to remedy the country's economic ills by use of a "cure-all" tariff. He declared that the average farmer desired the government to make "more available" such agencies for his ald as it now has rather than to waste further time on such questions as the tariff.

Says G. O. P. Divided.

The Mississippi senator asserted that the republican membership was not solidly behind the bill and read a speech, delivered by Senator Moses, republican. New Hampshire.

not solidly behind the bill and read a speech, delivered by Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, at the last session attacking the measure as being afflicted with "congenital economic rickets." Mr. Moses remarked that he assumed the speaker was seeking to "wring fecantations" from him and added. "But my position on this bill has not changed. I hope, at the propertime, to address a few pregnant remarks to the senate on the subject and I intend particularly to discuss the last section (restrictions on importation of dyestuff) of the bill."

Mr. Harrison then turned to what he described as a constructive program for relief of the farmers.

importation of dyestuff) of the bill."

Mr. Harrison then turned to what he described as a constructive program for relief of the farmers. He argued that railroad legislation which would make it possible for the American people again to use the transportation systems was urgent and that the farm loan system should be made to do its full duty by changes that would make loans easier to the farmers.

"Whatever happens to this tariff," he said, "these other subjects should be considered first. The senators on the other (republican) side mist go at this in a different way, they must follow a different course if they are not to betray their party principles and break all of the pledges made to the people last fall."

Chairman Fordney, of the house ways and means committee, announced today that subcommittees of his committee were practically through with their work on the permanent tariff bill and that the whole committee probably would begin consideration of the permanent schedules within a week.

Mr. Fordney indicated that the republican members of the committee were agreed on the adoption of the American valuation plan as the hasis for levying duties. He said that by basing the rates on the American wholesale value of a commodity rather than on its value in a foreign land it would be possible.

ARMY BLANKETS AND COTS NOT

FOR VETERANS BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON.

Constitution Bureau, Raleigh Hotel, a May 7.— (By Leased Wire.)—The Washington May 7.— (By Constitution Leased Wire.)—The city of Albany, Ga, must entertain the Georgia confederate veterans at their annual reunion next week, without the use of army blankets and cots. The senate military affairs committee today refused to favorable report a resolution of Senator Harris, of Georgia, providing for the loan of the war department's property, and a similar resolution by Representative Frank Park, of Georgia has been held up in the house.

Georgia. has been heid up in the house.

Senator Wadsworth, chairman of the senate committee, informed Senator Harris that the senate committee had decided to decline all requests for cots and blankets except in the case of national reunions of the G. A. R., confederate veterans, world war veterans, etc. The ban was placed on all state meetings, and yesterday the decision stopped the efforts of Senator Willis, of Ohio, to secure army supplies for a state meeting of the grand army veterans. A request for permission to send airplanes from Camp Benning, Ga., to entertain the veterans at Albany, was denied by the air service under instruction from the secretary of war to limit all flying to official matters. Senator Harris and several members of the Georgia delegation asked for the airplanes to give an exhibition.

ADAMSON IS CHOSEN REVENUE COLLECTOR BASS DRY GOODS CO. BY JAMES A. HOLLMOON.

BY JAMES A. HOLLMOON.

Constitution Bureau,
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, May 7.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Charles Adamson, of Cedartown, has been slated for the collector of internal revenue for Georgia, to succeed A. O. Blalock, encumbent. The appointment will probably be made soon fater the confirmation of D. H. Blair, who has recently been appointed commissioner, but whose confirmation has been held up by Senator Johnson, of California, that Blair will be confirmed within the next few days there is little doubt—but until that time no appointments of collectors will be, made as they must carry his official vise.

Mr. Adamson is a prominent cotton mill owner of North Georgia, and is otherwise largely identified with business and baking interests. He has not been an applicant for the position, but had indorsed another candidate. It was not until today that his agreement to accept the collectorship if tendered him was received in Washington.

He is strongly alligned with what is known as the "white faction" as opposing the Henry Lincoln Johnson faction, and his appointment, if made, will be counted as a decided victory for the Adamsan-Greer-Cole element.

It is very probable that C. P. Gore, of Atlanta, who at one time was alligned, with Johnson, but now represents a faction of his own, will eventually land the attorneyship for the prohibition enforcement of was alligned, with Johnson, but now represents a faction of his own, will eventually land the attorneyship for the prohibition enforcement offices in Georgia. He is seeking to be postmaster in Atlanta, but is at present on the slate for that position. It is more than probable that D. C. Cole, of Marietta, will become deputy collector of internal revenue. Lincoln Johnson will become deputy collector of internal revenue. Lincoln Johnson will between the condense of deeds for the district, if he will accept it.

As chairman of the state central committee he has not yet been provided for, but will land probable in a Washington department. He is seeking to be an assistant to the commissioner of internal revenue.

The Georgia situation will be cleaned up in the next few days by so providing for leaders of warring elements as to interlink them, hoping thereby to eliminate all friction. Johnson will remain as republican national committeeman for Georgia. As such he is now getting the eligible lists for civil service appointments in Georgia as exclusively stated in The Constitution several days ago.

VALERA IS CONCILIATORY.

dondon, May 7.—Eamonn de Vadera, the Irish republican leader, writing in The Irish Independent of Dublin today, what the newspaper characterizes as a remarkably concliatory message to Ulster, says:

"We shall never cease to maintain that there is a community of interest between our countrymen of the northeastern corner of Ireland and our people of the south and west. For all their misunderstandings and prejudices, artificially created for the most part, we believe the men of Ulster, reft from us by statute, but maintained to us by higher laws, look upon Ireland as their country and in their land as their country and in their hearts cherish the Irish name. In the eighteenth century Ulster felt profoundly her unity with the rest of Ireland. She will do so again. May that day come soon."

Washington, May 7.—The senate finance committee deferred action today on the nomination of David H. Blair, of North Carolina, to be commissioner of interval revenue, opposed in the senate by Senator Johnson, republican, of California. After hearing evidence on both sides the committee adjourned to resume the inquiry next Thursday.

Senator Johnson's objections to Mr. Blair's confirmation were based on the nominee's action as a delegate from North Carolina to the republican national convention at Chicago in not having supported the senator's candidacy, although the state primary preference went to Senator Johnson; and also upon the contention that Mr. Blair's father-in-law, J. W. Cannon, and other relatives, had income tax claims pending in large amounts before the treasury department.

Referring to Ireland, he said;
"I am very much delighted to see that the two national leaders in Ireland have met to discuss all questions bearing on the future of the country. What will ensue I cannot predict, but it is a good sign that they should discuss things together. (Mr. Lloyd-George was referring to the recent conversation of Sir James Craig, premier-designate of Ulster, and Eamonn De Valera, the Irish republican leader). Discussing the miners' demands for higher wages, involving governfor higher wages, involving government aid, the prime minister said the taxpayers could not be expected to pay the miners' wages. The mining industry must bear its own charges, he declared. If there was to be a permanent settlement it must be on that basis.

LAUNDRY PAY ROLL

Memphis, Tenn., May 7.—Bandits held up D. J. Strehl, office manager for Loeb's laundry, and J. W. Quinn, driver of a laundry truck in which Strehl was bringing $3,000 from a bank to meet the weekly payroll, when the truck reached Fourth and Madison streets in the downtown business district here today, and forced Strehl and Quinn to accompany them to a suburb where the bandts put the two men to the ground, took possession of the truck and escaped with the bag of money.

Chief James L. Beavers stated Saturday that many complaints had been registered recently concerning the preponderance of 'accessory thefts, particularly of spare tires. "The officers are doing all in their power to lessen this evil." said the chief, "but it is naturally a difficult matter to keep a watch on as many automobiles as are parked on Atlanta's streets." Car Robbed Four Times.

A well-known Atlanta man Sat-urday night reported to the police that his car had been stripped of its for the fourth time within two The first time the automobile was The first time the automobile was parked on Peachtree street between Fifteenth and Sixteenth when the robbers got busy. The second time was on Auburn Avenue, midway between North Pryor and Ivy street. The third was on Ellis street about haff a block from the Lyric theatre. The fourth was on Saturday night when the car was looted again and everything movable taken. This time the machine was parked under an arc light on Auburn avenue, not half a block away from the point where it was robbed the second time.

hat it was an impossibility to keep

Police officials also stated that the ondition took on a new impetus uring grand opera week, when here were so many cars parked in he neighborhood of the Auditorium a close watch on all of them.

The conclusion of opera week, it seems, however, has not lessened the evil to a perceptible degree, since people coming out of Atlanta theaters several times during the past week have been dumfounded to find their cars stripped of all accessories easily removable.

One night in particular, the crowds which poured out from a lotal vaudeville theater found that practically every car within a radius of several blocks of the playhouse had been robbed of tires, spotlights, and even batteries in some instances. The thieves had apparently figured that the owners of the automobiles were in the theater for an hour or so, and that consequently there was ample opportunity for plifering available accessories.

The operations of this nature recently have reached such a consistent and damaging extent that the insurance people are not loath to admit that the accessory losses are approaching, if not exceeding, the losses felt from the stealing of the successories automobiles themselves.

Where the Thirsty Were Satisfied

Georgia School Needs Outlined by Brittain In His Annual Report State Superintendent of Schools Details Education in ostate official has ever had more co-operation, sympathetic ain and affection from his comrades in the work than the present commis tional Situation in Georgia to give at least half an hour to this subject every day. In other words, it placed physical education on the same footing with arithmetic, grammar and geography. The teachers' manual upon this subject was prepared, with the aid of the state department of health, and distributed the first of this year. Georgia was the twelfth state to meet this demand for health training and physical education—the need for which was so clearly and conclusively shown in the examination of our soldiers for the world war—and was placed before you and the assembly last year. The convention will, of course, give the full force of its influence to this training in every section of the commonwealth, and in hope will also indoorse the new rehabilitation work, in charge of Mr. F. E. Land, discussed by educational officials and teachers. To this practice of curs is due much of 'the success we have had of late years in securing good school legislation. More, however, is due to the co-operation and sympathy that has come from the state of a first-class high converse its due to the co-operation and sympathy that has come from the state of the state case of the state of the state case of the state of the st

"Trustee-Ridden."

Two years ago in the state budget and investigating report. I wrote that Georgia is "trustee-ridden" and that the small army that performs this service should be reduced. If the papers have quoted him correctly, our new executive will favor a state board of regents instead and, in courtesy to him, I shall not discuss this subject further until he has given official opinion on this matter to the general assembly and to the people of the state. While on this subject of higher education, however, let me say that we have some duplication of work and naturally of expense that are unnecessary. From close examination of our system and naeds in the field of higher education, I think that we should have a change at one point. It does not seem to be wise or business-like for the state to be duplicating, even in part, any of its work at the university. This is the case, however, at the A. & M. college at Dahlonega. Instead of this, we should make of Dahlonega a fourth normal school for the training of teachers. Our institutions created for this purpose at Athens Milledgeville and Valdosta, are not only overcrowded, but have been turning away applicants for years. It is a real need which they supply and the state could meet this with a minimum of expense at Dahlonega instead of attempting to duplicate its college or university work at that place. It merely looks ridiculous to those on the outside, for the state—even if it had a great deal of money—to maintain two different institutions for college work at two places. The proper plan, of course, is to concentrate upon this type of training at the university, and without the loss of a dollar for the buildings and equipment at Dahlonega, use them for the needed normal school.

5. The Election of the County School Superintendent—I repeat the recommendation made before that the office of the county school superintendent in the propers of the county school superintendent of the county school superint

"Yet new, at an age over 66, I have a luxuriant growth of soft, trong, lustrous hair! No trace of baldness. The pictures shown are are from my photographs."

INDIANS' SECRET OF HAIR GROWTH

Mr. Brittain certified further: "At a time when I had become discouraged at trying to grow my hair again, I came across, in my travels, a Cherokee Indian 'medicine man' who had an elixir that he asseverated would grow my hair. Although I had but little fan.h I gave it a trial. To my amazement a light fuzz soon appeared. It developed, day by day, into a healthy growth, and ere long my hair was as prolific as in my youthful days."

"That I was assomished and happy is expressing my state of mind of when bald, middly. Obviously, the hair roots had not been dead, but were dormant in the scalp, awaiting the fertilizing potency of the then mysteus pomade. I negotiated for and came into possession of the principle for preparing , now called KOTALKO, and later had the recipe put into practical form by a mist. figures that he could not prove.

It seemed to him that bankers wanted to know a lot of fussy details that no man could be expected to answer off hand and he hated to go through all that -it seemed like a million questions to him.

The trouble with this man, and so many others in the same boat with him, is that he has never had his eyes opened to the need of getting more figure facts about his business. He thinks the cost of making daily records would eat up all his profits and he needs to be shown that on the contrary he would make more money if he had them.

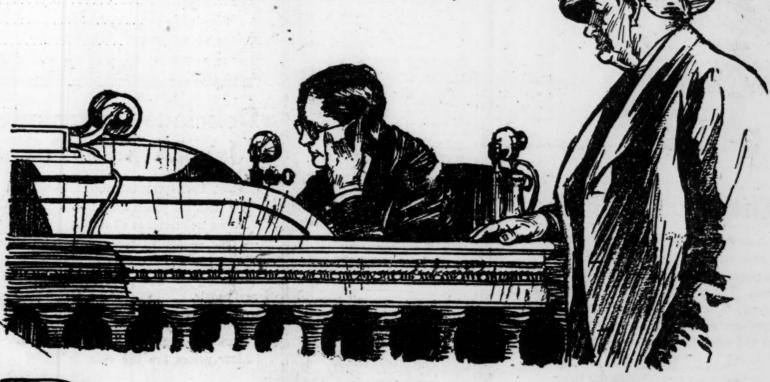

Most successful men in business today have learned that clear, accurate, detailed records of all the departments and operations of their business are the best assurance of success.

Machine methods of figuring and mechanical aids in bookkeeping and record keeping have simplified these operations so that it is no longer necessary to carry a heavy bookkeeping expense to get the necessary facts.

With a Burroughs figuring machine an inexperienced clerk can work out automatically all the figure problems of business transactions as: adding sales and charge slips, footing all sorts of figure columns, proving postings, taking trial balances, checking invoices, distributing sales by clerks or departments, totaling weights and quantities and so on.

Telephone the nearest Burroughs office and ask them to show you the type of machine you need and how to get the facts about your business.

Relative comparison between New England and southern wages do not truly reflect the facts because southern cotton mills charge practically nothing for house rents. lights water, sewerage, etc. They sell coal and many supplies to the people at cost and thus further assist them. Northern mills do not maintain villages and the people are compelled to pay high rents, with corresponding charges for lights, water, etc. The difference in this item alone is sufficient to cover a substantial margin in wages. Another big difference is the fact that southern Relative comparison between New margin in wages. Another big difference is the fact that southern mills have been running fairly continuously in order to give employment to their operatives, while the northern mills have been shut down and the people thrown out of work. The difference has been that between a curtailed envelope and no envelope at ali. Whether the policy pursued has been to the advantage of other mills remains to be seen. Foster began, some time past, the manufacture of the LaReve products in his home in West End. Already the success of his venture has practically outgrown his little home laboratory, and soon larger quarters must be secured.

Mr. Foster's research proved to him that lemon oil is one of the best promoters of good complexion, and this he uses in the manufacture of lemon toream, lemon lotton, vanishing cream, hair tonic, toilet water, shampoo preparation, etc. No greases of any kind are used. LaReve toilet water is made from the roses and violets grown around the doorsteps of Mr. Foster's home. Munn's drug store has a pretty wind dow display of these products, and they are for sale in many of the leading drug stores of the city.

ARARAT GROTTO GROWS RAPIDLY

Veiled Prophets Announce Dance, Ceremonial and Auto Race Meet for Next Two Weeks.

"That's a mighty long tail our cat has," said a newly-initiated prophet of Ararat Grotto the first prophet of Ararat Grotto the first time he heard pronounced the full title of the order he had joined—the Mystic Order of Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm. But it doesn't interfere with activity in the least, so far as the local grotto is concerned; "Bill" MoDuffle, monarch of Ararat, has twisted the tail of the feline, metaphorically speaking, and something is happening or going to happen all the time. First and foremost Ararat's band is now a completed organization, the patrol filled up so quickly another organization known as the zouaves has been organized and uniformed, and Ararat's membership is growing so rapidly that every in Lane's hall, the current Masonic card being required to be shown at the door.

On Friday, May 13, an extraordinary ceremonial session will be held at which some 200 candidates will have an opportunity to settle forever in their own minds as to whether Friday, the 13th day of the month, is lucky, unlucky, or just an ordinary sort of a day.

But the big event on the calendar of the prophets of Ararat is an automobile race meet to be held at Lakewood on May 21, starting at 2, m. Monarch McDuffie states that there will be eight races, and over twenty famous drivers of highspeed cars have signified their intention of entering and competing for the prizes. Ararat Grotto has completed all arrangements for this big event and prophets will attend in a body, wearing their fezzes. Ararat's band, patrol and zouaves will be present to entertain the vast crowd between the races.

Ararat prophets are planning on attending the thirty-second annual session of the national organization at Atlantic City June 28 and 29, and a special train over the Seaboard for the trip.

Following is the resolution adopted:

Whereas, at a meeting in session in Atlanta of the general chairmen of the United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees and Railway Shop Laborers of the Southeastern District this date wishes to be placed on record as unanimously supporting a resolution offered by this association in sympathy with the employees of all crafts of the Atlanta, Birmincham and, Atlantic railway who withdrew from the service of that company on March 5 on account of the management of said A. B. & A. arbitrarily reducing the wages of such employees in violation of a decision rendered by the United States railroad labor board, and contrary to an act of congress known as the transportation of act of 1920;
Whereas we believe the said employees of the A., B. & A. railway were just and right in their contentions of living up to the decision of the railroad labor board and the principles of the transportation act of 1920; therefore be it.

HEADS EDUCATORS

Georgia Educational Association Votes to Meet Next Year in Columbus. Miss Dozier Praised.

Saturday marked the close of two of the most notable conventions ever held in Atlanta—the white and colored educational associations of the state, each of which was addressed by some of the south's leading educators.

The principal events of the day at the meeting of the white educa-tors were the election of officers for the ensuing year, and the selection of Columbus as the meeting place of the convention in 1922. At noon the delegates began leaving the city—leaving with the knowledge of good work accomplished, and appreciative of the hospitality extended them by Atlantans.

Following the final session of Saturday morning of the white organizations held at 9:30 o'clock in Vesley Memorial auditorium chief interest in the City Auditorium and Boys' High school where the exhibits of Atlanta's school children, covering a wide variety of subjects, are being given. Alfriend Is Elected.

Kyle T. Alfriend, of Milledgeville, was elected president of the G. E. A. for the coming year. The other officers selected to head the organization during the year are H. D. Knowles, of Quitman, vice presi dent; .W. P. Jones, of Macon, secredent; W. P. Jones, of Macon, secretary, and A. G. Cleveland, of Valdosta, treasurer.

Resolutions were adopted thanking Atlanta for the hospitality extended the delegates, and also commending the work of Miss Batherine Dozler, of Gainesville, retiring president, for her tireless efforts on behalf of the association.

The following directors were named: C. E. Phillips, Atlanta; Miss Epsie Campbell, Athens, and H. B. Carricker, Commerce Ga.

The Georgia Home Economics association wound up its session Saturday following the meeting in the auditorium of the Boys' High school. A series of round table discussions was held on "Standardization of High School Curriculum." "Health, Thrift and Appropriate Dress," and other interesting topics. The final social event was the luncheon given at 12:30 o'clock in the Daffodil tea room.

WIFE'S ALIMONY SUIT

The hearing on the petition of Mrs. Estelle Jones for temporary alimony pending the conclusion of her suit for divorce was featured by charges and counter charges Saturday morning before Judge John D. Pendleton in the superior court. J. M. Jones, a well-known business man of Rome, Ga., was fighting the charges made by his wife to the effect that he kicked and struck her and caused her much mental anguish. He stated that his wife has an ungovernable temper; that she frequently ties the children's clothes in knots; that she hides their clothes on Sunday, keeping them away from church; that one cold day last winter she knocked the stove down and broke out several windows, and that she awakened him one night, pistol in hand, threatening his life.

The hearing is expected to be concluded Monday. Attorneys Maddox & Doyal, of Rome, appear for Mrs. Jones, while Attorney F. W. Copeland, also of Rome, represents the husband.

R. N. BRIGHT RETURNED TO ATLANTA FOR TRIAL

R. N. Bright was brought back to Atlanta Saturday from Denver Colo., where he will be put on trial in the Fulton superior court on charges of having passed a number of worthless checks on Atlanta business houses. He is held under $10,000 bond. Six indictments are pending against him.

Bright is alleged to have purchased diamonds and an automobile from local concerns, paying for them with checks which the business houses claim are worthless. He also is said to have secured several hundred dollars from the Georgian Terrace hotel management. He left Atlanta suddenly several weeks ago and finally was apprehended in Denver, Colo., after a chase which ranged from Atlanta to Settle. Bright made no effort to fight extradition.

DR. SLATER TO SPEAK TO COLORED MOTHERS

Dr. T. H. Slater will speak to the mothers of the Urban League Better Babies clinic, conducted by Dr. G. R. Dwelle, on the subject "A Well-Balanced Diet," Wednesday, May 11, at 3:30 p. m., at the Colored Y. M. C. A., 146 North Butler street. At that time Jesse O. Thomas, of the Urban league, and Edward L. Sayder, of the Pyramid Pictures Corporation of Chicago, will be present and speak of the moving picture to be staged in Atlanta known as "Healthy Babies, the Wealth of the Nation." Dr. Dwelle requests that all mothers be present.

of BLUE SKY LAW

The meeting of the Advertising club of Atlanta next Thursday at 12:30 o'clock at the Kimball house breakfast room will be featured by an address from T. B. Conner. chief examiner of the Georgia securities commission, a department having in charge the enforcement of the blue sky laws of Georgia against fake stock promotion schemes.

The history of the development of blue sky laws and practical examples of—their—operations will be brought out by Mr. Conner in his talk. The work of the Georgia securities commission dovetails with that of the better business bureau operated by the Advertising club of Atlanta.

In addition, C. V. Hohenstein, executive secretary, will speak to the club on the subject: "What Members of the Advertising Club Can Do To Make the 1321 World's Convention of Advertising Clubs as Success."

P. S. Florea, general manager of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, who has been in Atlanta during the last week conferring with the board of directors regarding convention arrangements, expressed himself as being theroughing convention arrangements, expressed himself as being theroughing convention arrangements, expressed himself as being theroughing its plans.

In the Hardest Market in Years The Haynes Scores Greatest Success

states Alton G. Seiberling, Vice President and General Manager The Haynes Automobile Company, Kokomo, Indiana

This is the greatest year the Haynes has ever known. It is far exceeding last year and the year before, when production alone measured the volume of sales. That was a "sellers' market," and little if any work was necessary to sell a car.

To-day things are different. People are scrutinizing their purchases. They are insisting that every dollar shall buy its full value.

And to-day the sales of Haynes cars are exceeding those of last year by one-third. The volume of sales is 1331/3 per cent. of any previous year. So great is the demand for the Haynes that to-day in our big factories at Kokomo we are employing 16 per cent, more men than ever before, even in the big rush days of last year and the previous one.

There is just one big impressive reason for this. When anybody sees the Haynes and studies it until he knows its worth he wants it. The Haynes 50—the smaller and lighter six-cylinder, five-passenger touring car introduced the first of the year-has swept the country. Never before was a motorist offered such value. When you realize that it is on a par in quality and workmanship with the larger Haynes models you sense the extreme desirability of the car.

Although we had prepared for a large volume of orders, the demand is already so great that deliveries are apt to be delayed. We urge you to select your Haynes now so that you may have it in good time.

Another Reason for Advance.
But, for the sake of argument, assume that the predictions now being made of gradual trade improvement, like those of early this year, do not materialize; that the number of unemployed, now estimated at between 2,000,000 and 5,000,000, increases; that business continues indefinitely to mark time. There is still another possible explanation for why prices of stocks should advance. ould advance.
Why did prices of stocks decline eadily from November of 1919 until scember of 1920? Because of the porld-wide scarcity of credit. One dividual or country in need of capital bid against the other until Today, with money growing easier, United States government bonds are still selling at prices offering the buyer as much as 4.5 per cent flat, that is, ignoring the date of maturity, when they will be redeemed at par. That compares with less than 4 in 1913 when money was easier than now. Prior lien bonds of the railroads named are now selling 20 points lower than in 1913, or where the income return is a point or more higher. The turn is a point or more higher. much I hope is the past week was the announcement strike, stagng to of the Atlanta Federal Reserve bank reducing its discount rate on commercial and industrial paper from 7 to 6 per cent. At the same time the increase of from 5½ to 6 per cent was made on loans secured by government collateral.

The action of the Atlanta Federal Reserve bank followed reductions in rates by the New York and Boston reserve banks. The reduction in New York, however, was only to 6½ per cent, canceling the former rate of 7 per cent, while the Boston discount rate reduction was similar to that made here. Easing of money in the eastern markets came on the heels of the lowering of the discount rate in that section and should be followed by like action in this locality. Here the farmer will be the one to benefit most from the reduction in the reserve bank rate.

Little Change Noted.

Little change was noted during the first and middle parts of the week in local stocks and bonds, and there has been no decided change in the situation one way or the other. Until the latter part of last week New York stocks and bends, in which Georgians, and particularly Atlantans, are interested, were active, but failed to show a definite trend. The latter part of the week strength was developed by all New York stocks and bonds, with rails and steels taking the lead. There was a wide range in quotations. position weakened by yesterday's bulge .the wheat market gave way today readily when reports of rains in the southwest wiped out Friday's pessimistic reports of crop conditions there. The close was 31-2 to 63-4 cents net lower with May 31.41-2 to $1.41.4 Corn lost 1 to 11-4 cents; oats, 7-8 to 11-8 cent, and provisions 10 to 52 cents.

The weather reports of showers in Kansas and Nebraska started wheat off weak and as evidence came to light that the cash situation had eased the selling pressure increased. A rapid decline set in when reports that Minneapolis and Omala were sending cash grain to this market were supplemented by trade advices that Europe was taking Argentine offerings because they were at a goodly discount under this country. One seaboard report had it that foreign buyers had cancelled 80,000 bushels of wheat.

Very little support was noted at any stage of the market. At one time May wheat was nearly 3 cents under Friday's top figure, and July was off more than 4 cents. Country offerings were reported fairly liberal on yesterday's bulge, but later advices said this movement showed signs of checking. A big run of corn receipts met a rather steady export demand and this latter condition served as a brake against the influence of the wheat weakness. May corn at the start was about 4 cents under July, but this special paragrad and paragrad in the southwest wiped out Friday's the influence of the wheat weakness. May corn at the start was about 4 cents under July, but this spread, narrowed rapidly, under buying of May and seiling of July.

Indications were that 500 cars of corn might be here Monday and railroad inspection crews were told to work tomorrow. It was estimated that 150 cars in today were not inspected. Local cash sales were 422,000, including 325,000 bushels for export. Oats were much in sympathy with corn. They showed some firmness at times, but reacted to the wheat weakness. Local selling of provisions, due to the break in grain, overcame the usual effects of a strong bog market conditions in the south. July contracts soid off to 13.04, or 15 points net lower and closed at 13.13 with the general market closing steady at a net decline of 4 to 10 points.

The opening was 4 to 5 points higher owing to favorable week-end reports from the goods trade and the emphasis placed upon easing money market conditions by the reduction of discount rates at Chicago. The strength of bar silver in London was also a factor, as it encouraged the expectation of an expansion in Lancashire business as soon as labor conditions become set on as labor conditions become setsoon as labor conditions become set-tled, while the recent strength of francs in the exchange market has encouraged optimism with refer-ence to an ultimate agreement on reparations. These features failed ence to an ultimate agreement on reparations. These features failed to stimulate any general or aggressive buying, however, and the market soon turned easier under New Orleans, Wall street and scattered selling. Perhaps the failure of yesterday's conference to settle the marfne strike was a factor, but the more important feature appeared to be the better weather in the south and the ubik of the late forenoon selling was attributed to New Orleans. May eased off to 12.60 and October to 13.61, making net declines of about 15 to 18 points and reactions of some 25 or 30 points from yesterday's best levels. The market was then steadled by renewed covering, closing at railies of 8 or 9 points from the lowest. Another private report published this morning placed the reduction in acreage at 33 per cent. but while these figures compared bullishly with previous statements, they failed to offset the effects of improved growing conditions: Today's estimates placed the week's sales in fall River at 150.000 pieces and curtailment of production at 130.000, "able advices indicated that Lancashire was feeling the effects of increasing coal shortage, but reiterated reports or a good business pending.

NEW ORLEANS DROPS

New Orleans, May 7.—Small advances in the early trading in cotton today gave way to moderate declines, the market feeling much hodge selling with offerings of this sort heaviest in October, which dissipayed the widest declines. Early steadiness was due to private messages from Liverpool, telling of a better feeling regarding the settlement of the coal strike and claiming that a large business was waiting to be done. Some buying resulted from the favorable impression made by the acceptance by this country of the invitation to send a representative to the allied supreme countly.

PROFESSIONAL VIEWS

C. J. Haden, prominent Atlantan, will go to Washington on May 16 to attend a conference on the pink boll worm situation in the cotton-raising sections of the United States. The invitation to Mr. Haden, one of the south's leading combatants against cotton pests, comes from Henry C. Wallace, secretary of agriculture under the Harding administration, consigned cotton reach here almost daily and the local certificated stock grows alowly, but steadily. The cotton recently bought against the sale of hedges, of course, reranins in the south on account of the smaller carrying charges, but should experts continue disappointing, a considerable quantity of this cotton will be sent to New York for delivery on contract and the local stock will become whatever may be the capacity of New York's cotton warehouses. The small spinners' takings are principally in Europe and during the past few weeks mainly on the continent. The experience of American shippers with cotton consigned abroad has not been entirely satisfactory. At this time there is a considerable quantity, particularly in Germany. Money is becoming easier, which will facilitate the shipping of cotton to New York for delivery on contract, the advance in futures permitting the spot dealer to do so at a profit. Germany will doubtlessly agree to the allies' reparations ultimatum to prevent the occupation of the Rohr, thus gaining further time. Whether or not it means payment is another matter.

J. W. JAY & CO.

New York, May 7.—(Special.)—Spurts of ministration.

Prominent among those who will attend the conference in the nation's capital is Professor B. R. Coad, the country's highest authority on pests which endanger cotton crops.

In a letter to Mr. Haden, urging the importance of his attendance on the importance of his attendance of his attendance on the importance of his attendance of his att capital is Professor B. R. Coad, the country's highest authority on pests which endanger cotton crops. In a letter to Mr. Haden, urging the importance of his attendance on the session in Washington, Professor Coad has pointed out that a number of outbreaks of the pink boll worm have been detected in Texas, and that two infestations have been discovered in Louisiana. He stated that the Washington conference was essential in order to rehash the entire situation thoreoughly and determine whether or oughly and determine whether or notit is best go to ahead with the represent campaign, or to drop it and allow the infestation to persist and spread. Two men from each cotton state are being requested to attend the important conference.

Letter to Haden.

The letter from the secretary of a griculture from the serior of the merchant marine industry while benefited by the labor liquidation of the marine industry while benefited by the labor liquidation in other industrial fields.

Admiral Benson further stated that it would be, indeed, unfortunate if the personnel of the merchant marine persists in refusing to do their part in the labor liquidation of the marine industry while benefited by the labor liquidation in other industrial fields.

Admiral Benson further stated that increase in wages might make up the difference in the depreciation in the value of the dollar.

Bear Mr. Haden: I am enclosing, for the more of the money of the marine labor controversy which now confronts this country which now confr or not it means payment is another matter.

J. W. JAY & CO.

New York, May 7.—(Special.)—Spurts of short-lived activity and higher levels of prices prevailed in cotton from time to time during the week, only to be followed by periods of almost utter stagnation and lower figures. Sentiment is undeniably bearish. However, we believe there is wisdom in the ancient advice never to sell a dull market. Favorable termination of political and labor issues now pending could, in our opinion, easily bring about an advance of 100 points or more. On the other hand, there is no feature in sight to warrant a material decline. We favor purchases at present levels, but think profits should be taken on any alarph decay.

Mr. C. J. Haden, Land Trust Co., Atlanta, Georgia.

Georgia.

Dear Mr. Haden: I am enclosing, for your information, a call issued by this department for a cotton conference on May 16, 1921. The purpose of the eonference is to consider how best to protect the cotton industry against the pink boil worm. It is hoped that there will be a good representation from all states interested in cotton production, and invitations are being ent to the sceretaries of agriculture and quarantine officials of these states and others known to be especially interested in the subject, and also to the farm and cotton organizations.

Gives Information.

Gives Information of the defiremence in the depreciatation in the value of the dollary in the subject, and I make an arries at principle, and I make an arries at heart to come with me and the shipping board in making the readjustments effective in line with those of other American industries." New Orleans, May 7.—(Special.)—The sustaining features of the past week were unneasonable low temperatures in the interior, improvement in the textile trade demand, firmness of southern spots and a lowering of the federal reserve bank discount last.

However, this probability is pretty well discounted by the low level of values, by the indicated big reduction of about 30 per cent in this year's acreage and use of fertilizer of an inferior quality.

Ju other words, while the indicated carryton organizations.

Gives Information.

I shall be glad if you can attend and participate in this conference.

I am enclosing a memorandum giving priefly the present status of the pink boll worm in the south, for the information of those who may wish to attend the conference. of an inferior quality,

In other words, while the indicated carryover points to nearly four million in excess of last year's surplus, the reduction in acreage and in use of fertilizers promises a yield this year of about 4,000,000 bales smaller than one year ago.

Therefore, the indicated supply for next season points to about the same as it was this season, about 19,886,000 bales. While it is rather premature to make such sorecast, present conservative deductions point to such a situation.

That being the case, there is reason to expect better results in obtaining a better price for the new crop, especially if it should prove to be smaller than the liberal allowance of ten million bales, which is possible in event of unfavorable weather ravares by insects, particularly by weevils, which are reported numerous already because of the mild winter.

Furthermore, the world is gradually returning to normalicy, with every indication of the demand increasing in the future, especially after the German reparations question is settled and after the British coal strike is a thing of the past, as Manchester reports a large business accumulating, awaiting settlement of the constrike.

The encouraging feeture of the situation is that trade will likely be much better next season than it was this, in which event spinners' takings of American may far exceed takings of this season, which are now running on a basis of about 10,000,000 whereas last season they totaled 12,855,000 bales.

H. & B. BEER. ference.

I will appreciate it very much if you will notify me whether it will be possible for you to attend. Very truly yours, HENRY C. WALLACE, Secretary of Agriculture.

Macon, Ga., May 7 .- (Special.)-A committee investigating condi-tions at Macon hospital today reported at a joint session of the Ma-con hospital commission and the finance committee of city council that the Macon hospital is being efficiently operated, and that there are no "leaks" in the institution. The investigation was made as a result of the fact that the hospital has incurred debt and that reports of mismanagement had been in circulation.
The committe recommended that

The committe recommended that the city assume the outstanding indebtedness of the hospital up to May 1, which totals about $50,000, and that in the future the hospital receive $38,000 from the city and $12,000 from Bibb county as the annual appropriation.

During the discussion of the report, it became known that there areto be cuts in salaries and in operating expenses in many departments, not only in the city hospital, but in every department of the city government, and that these cuts will be made at an early date. The people of Macon probably will be called upon to contribute to a fund to continue the efficient operation of the hospital.

BENSON DEFENDS Agnes Scott Girls Please COUPLE INJURED FATE In Story of Pandora's Box

Agnes Scott students ushered in the spring with a May day pageant on the campus on Saturday afternoon, a version of the story of Pandora's box being presented. Both solo and ensemble dancing was generously provided in the action of the story, and was enacted in a manner which brought applauses from the 1,500 persons in the audience.

Miss Rachael Rushton, a member of the senior class, and Professor Deickman, head of the music department at the college, collaborated in arranging the pageant. The cast included more than 50 students all of whom showed in their acting and dancing the most thorough training and reflearsing.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 7.—With the unanimous adoption of the foreign trade program for the coming year, as recommended by the general convention committee, copies of which will be sent to President Harding, members of his cabinet, senators and congressmen, the eighth annual convention of the national foreign trade council closed a four-day session here this morning.

The report of the committee is a composite embodiment of all practical recommendations brought forward by international experts at the general and group sessions of the convention. Every phase of the world's export business—credits, exchange rates, taxation, tariffs, mercantile marine, domestic transportation, consular service and other problems of importers and exporters—is covered in the report.

Glasgow, May 7.—A strike of dock workers has been ordered here as a result of the ban placed on foreign coal by the transport workers' federation. The dispute came to a crisis when the steamer Kalimba, chartered for a voyage to America, was being coaled, the dock workers alleging that the vessel was not taking a full supply and intended to fill her bunkers abroad. Non-union labor is being employed under police protection.

Peyton Dickey, aged 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dickey, of East Point, died suddenely at the family home, at 609 East Point avenue, at 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning. His death is attributed to injuries sustained in a fall from his bicycle late He was thrown from the machine on Main street, and picked up un-conscious. fering in Ireland Saturday, according to the official report submitted by Mrs., McAlbin, of the committee which managed the eampaign in the city on behalf of the American Committee for Relief in Ireland. The force of canvassers included 250 young women who sold green ribbons for the cause.

"During the world war," said Maurice J. McCarthy, southern organizer for the American committee, in thanking the Atlanta citizens for their response to the appeals. "Ireland stood second to the United States in the amount of money sent to relieve distress in Europe. With destruction now within her own borders, Ireland must appeal for relief, and it is gratifying to find the same help extended to her which she, in her prosperity, extended to others."

The total sought throwshout the United States is $10.350.000, which will be used to relieve suffering and want among Trish women and children. Repeated assurances have been given that the money will not be used for political purposes, and its distribution in Ireland is in the hands of a committee of Quakers. The national campaign will close at the end of this month.

Lowry Arnold, chairman of the Atlanta Adisory board of the alvation Army Home Service appeal, on Saturday issued the fol-owing statement:

For three years no Salvation Army lassie with a tambourine has solicited subscriptions from the public. Their time is now devoted to rescue, relief and religious work. Another organization wearing a uniform similar to the Salvation Army and soliciting funds with tambdarines has caused many of our friends to believe that the Salvation Army has broken its promise made to a generous American public three years ago.

"That promise has not been broken. The Salvation Army wants to know who are its friends. For every contribution, whether it be five cents or a thousand dollars, a receipt on Salvation Army stationery will be issued. Ask for your receipt."

Havana. Cuba, May 7.—Military authorsties at Camaguey, a railroad center of eastern Cuba, were ordered last night to establish a vigilance service over property of the Cuban Railway company, the lines of which have been tied up by a strike of employees for ten days. This action followed the burning of a mail car in an emergency train sent out from Camaguey yesterday and reports of an attempt to burn a bridge near that place.

Press dispatches from the provinces of Camaguey and Orients served by the Cuban company lines declare the strike has seriously interfered with the sugar narvest.

Government mediators thus far have failed to bring the opposing sides into agreement.

The Greatest Porch Rocker Value of the Season

They were made to sell for $6.50. We bought 100 at a price for this sale. You miss the bargain of the season if you fail to take advantage of this sale. There will be no more at this price when this lot is sold. They are made of rock maple—similar to cut, except the arms are broad and flat instead of round, and the seat slats run cross-wise, instead of length-wise, making a better and more attractive rocker than picture shows. Remember, on sale Monday only. Limit two to a customer.

North Carolina State Outfit Defeats Jackets by 4-1 Count

"Weinie" Collins in Many Holes, But Extricates Himself - Errors Play Big Part.

BY WALLACE GEORGE.

Running over one run in the second, and three more in the third, by coupling hits with a quartet of miscues on the part of Griffin, the Tech shortstop, the North Carolina State boys ran over a 4-to-1 victory over the Georgia Tech nine on Grant field Saturday afternoon.

Murray, star right-hander of the visitors, was invincible all the way, and had the Tech team eating out of his hand. Webb crashed one of his offerings in the right field stand for Tech's lone tally, and Soc Instram got the one other hit of the Jackets when he smashed out a double in the eighth with none on Barron, walking in the fourth, was the only other man to even get on base.

State Tallies Four Runs.

hits after the fourth, but the dedefense of the Jackets managed to tighten at the critical moments. Soc Ingram contributed a feature catch with the bases full and two out in the seventh. He snagged the ball on a dead run back and toward center field. He followed it up bleading the seventh off with the double to center, and in the eighth and ninth again made some pretty catches. Webb's home run drive featuerd the hitting, it salling high into the stands in right. A good-sized crowd witnessed the melec. The Box Score.

N. C. STATE— ab. r, h. po.

The first run was the result of Collins' wildness in hitting Floyd in the ribs, a passed ball and an error on the part of Griffin. In the third the State hine, with one down, got two hits in a row and Johnson tallied when Barron let Murray's single get through him. Norwood krounded out, but three conscutive errors by Griffin on ground balls, all hot and hard to handle, plus a single by Floyd, brought the visitors' total up to their four runs. The State boys had numerous chances at scoring thereafter, but collins, on the mound for Tech, held them in check very nicely. He was touched only occasionally for lone aseballs have been discovered at the Mobile Southern association park, according to President John D. Logan, who has taken the matter up with President John D. Martin, at Memphis, and National Com-missioner K. M. Landis, at Chicago. The balls were found after the Mo-bile-Little Rock game on Friday, but the discovery of nails being driven into them was not made missioner K. M. Landis, at Chicago. The balls were found after the Mobile-Little Rock game on Friday, but the discovery of nails being driven into them was not made until today.

'SPIKED' BALL Y A LE TRIMS SOUTHERN PRINCETON

The nail is a small long wire need and was driven into the stitches of the ball and it had to be examined closely to find it. It is claimed that the added weight of the nail on one side of the ball enclaimed that the added weight of the nail on one side of the ball enabled the pitcher to make it do all sorts of funny things. The Mobile players claim that they did not put the balls into play and how they got into the game is something else to be determined. President Logan stated tonight that he would demand a full investigation of the spiked balls. The "spit ball," the "shine ball" are not new, but this is the first time that a "spiked ball" has been clistovered.

a one-sided, uninteresting institute from Barnesville, Ga., defeated the Tech High school, 15 to, and thereby cinched the 1921 G. A. A. pennant. Daniels, the star moundsman of the Gordon aggretation, was on the hill and was not in any danger throughout the whole battle.

The feature of the game was the ditching of Daniel and the batting of the whole team for Gordon, and the catching of Hammel for Tech ligh.

LOCALS OFF FOR SERIES

neader with the Birmingham Barons yesterday, the Atlanta Crackthree-game series will be opened today. Upon their return the locals take on Kid Elberfeld and his Travelers for another difficult test. The battles in Nashville should prove the easiest sort of sailing for the Frankmen, as Hub Perdue has failed in his efforts to give the Vols a stronger outfit than they the Galveston club in the Texas feague.

Hub's only pitcher appears to be Bill Statham, who walloped the Frankmen last year in his only start in this vicinity, but even this good pitcher has failed to round Totals39 4 9 27 13 0 into perfect condition and has pitched real baseball only in occasional possessed last year under the direction of Roy Ellam, now managing

The players of the Elberfeld fold The players of the Elberfeld fold will present a different situation, however, and the Crackers will be forced to extend themselves to cop this series. Little Rock was unfortunate enough to start against Memphis, a team that was in midseason form even before the curtain went up. The start of the Travelers, under these circumstances, wasn't what their supporters had hoped for and the wall went out that the Kid would not come within a mile of the bunting.

He added a player or two, the schedule sent him against other teams and the stock of his team up by leaps and bounds, until now up by leaps and bounds, until now up by leaps and bounds, until now they hold a respectable position in the club standing with every indication of the good work continuing. The Atlanta pitching staff is in good shape for the battle in Nashville, and it is probable that Konemann will be used today. This lad pitched great ball in the Georgia State last year, but has had a lot of trouble getting started this season. A victory would give him considerable confidence and he will unquestionably get his chance in one of the games with the Volunteers.

Princeton, N. J., May 7.—Yale athletes defeated Princeton in a dual track meet here today 56 points to 48. It was one of the hardest fought meets ever held here, the result being in doubt until the last event, the 220-yard dash, which Feldman, of Yale, won in 22 seconds flat.

Nashville, Tenn., May 7.—(Special.)—Vandy celebrated second "Cap" Alley day with another slugfest at the expense of a pair of Howard hurlers, copping the second and last game of the series with little difficulty, 13 to 1. The Commodore swatsmiths slugged hard, collecting ten hits, including a pair of four-ply swats by McCullough, one by Brown and another by Scotty Neil. Speaking of "Babe Ruthers," no less than nine were made in this Howard series. Big Tot McCullough was responsible for four of them, Scotty Neil three and Brown and McClain each collected one.

Two of the circuit socks came with the cushions very tightly loaded. In the second frame Embrey dropped a neat single into left field: Luten was out, but Ruhn walked; Neil walked, and the S. R. O. sign appeared on every sack. Whereupon McCullough, who was shifted to first in Thomas' absence! drove a terrific sock into the right field stands, and every base runner lined up on the home path and trotted across together. Practically the same stunt was duplicated when Embrey again singled in the next inning; Luten was hit by a pitched ball; Kuhn lined out to McClain, and Shelton dropped Neil's long drive. Nanning Brown appeared at the platter with every cushion loaded and duplicated of fire same spot, making a total of fire and possible approached and the same spot, making a total of fire same spot.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 7.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, to-day personally supervised the work of putting the finishing touches on his training camp here, in preparation for active training for his championship fight with Georges Carpentier at Jersey City on July 2. He was out on the beach early this morning, played golf in the afternoon, and, after spending half an hour at a banquet of the Atlantic City Knights of Columbus tonight, retired early. The champion will start training in earnest on Monday, when his sparring partners are due to arrive.

Dempsey's camp is situated on the site of the proposed $5,000,000 shores stadium. The site comprises eleven acres and is bounded on three sides by water.

Crackers Win Opening Battle, But Barons Tie Second Game

Markle Pitches Fine Ball Markle Pitches Fine Ball in First Encounter, Despite Wildness in Early Innings.

A ninth inning rally, when two crackers gave the homelings a 4 wingo 1, Allen 1, Brondon 1, Kauffman 2, Allen 1, Allen 1, Brondon 1, Kauffman 2, Wingo 1, Ritter 1; left on bases.

A ninth inning raily, when two runs were driven across by the Crackers gave the homelings a 4 to 3 victory in the first game of the double-header at Ponce de Leon yesterday afternoon, but the Frank men were unable to accomplish much against fates, a right-hander in the second battle of the bargain bill, and the Birmingham Barons held the Atlantans to a knotted count in this encounter, four runs being equally divided between the teams.

Cliff Markle was the winning pitcher in the opening game and his work was good enough to have won almost any ball game. He was uncertain at the start, but he improved as the game unrolled and at the finish the Barons couldn't have drawn a picture of a tally. He was opposed by Gallagher, who pitched well enough until the Crackers sent over their final barrage. He was hammered to the showers in this frame and his place was taken by old Doc Newton, who seems to be the best bet in the relief line that Carlton Molesworth brought over from Slagtown.

There was very little to choose between Markle and Gallagher until the Baronial slabman broke under the pressure he was subjected to. Both were very wild, but Markle got rid of most of his during the first three innings and aided the uphill fight of his teammates by keeping out of serious trouble after those linnings had been passed.

Stewart Stars.

Good base running by Stewart and Pug Allen's single to right gave Birmingham her first run, the tally coming in the openium trame. Emery first up, fanned, looking bad against the drop ball that Cliff served up. The slant wasn't so puzzling to Stewart, however, who dumped a one-timer to center and immediately stole second. He stayed there for an instant and scored on Allen's single to right. Bernsen hit into a double play, Kauffman to Stow to Kaufman.

Gallagher had a deal of trouble.

Vols Win Two Games.

Chattanooga, May 7.— Taking double play, Kauffman to Stov to Kauffman.

Gallagher had a deal of trouble starting and before the end of the Cracker's first inning, the locals were one run to the good. Ritter was out, Taylor to Bernsen, but Fred Graft worked Gallagher for a free ticket and went to first: Guyon doubled to left and Freddie drew up at third. Gallagher looked toward the Baronial bench, received orders to walk Wingo and obeyed instructions, filling the hassocks. Kauffman singled through Trayner, Graft and Guyon scoring. Mayer struck out and the side was retired when Bobby Stow hit to Gallagher and was headed at first.

The Barons tied the score in the second, all the damage starting after two were down. Taylor walked and stole second, scoring on Brandon's one-base swat to center. The Cracker's were unable to better their mark in this inning, but the Barons went into the lead position in the third when Stewart rapped to left center for the circuit.

The Ninth Inning.

There was no more scoring until the ninth, when the Cracker artiiliery shelled the Baronial positions and carried the works. Stow, first up, singled to left and went to second when Fuhrman was given a base on balls. Gallagher here lost his sense of direction and Manning, batting for Markle was passed, filling the sacks. Doc Newton was rushed to the rescue by Molesworth, and Ritter celebrated the newcomer's arrival by pasting a single through short. Stow scored on the bingle, but poor coaching sent through short. Not a Georgia man reached first until the sixth inning, and only one after that. Johnson was never in danger, and was master of the situation from beginning to end. He was given errorless support by his team mates. In fact, the support accorded him was nothing short of sensational. Especially did "Dot" Fulghum back the twirler, running all over the diamond after hard chances and never making the slightest semblance of a bobble. Shirling's Hitting. "Ed" Shirling led his nine at the bat with a triple to the center field creek, which scored Lassiter from first. Jack Frost hurled good bail for the Red and Black. He gave up only five hits and struck out six men. Three Auburn men drew free tickets to first. Auburn scored first in the second and scored on "Josh" Watson's error of Gibson's grounder. The Tigers tallied twice in the fourth. Barnes walked. Lassiter took first on a fielder's choice, Barnes going out at second, Shirling tripled, scoring Lassiter from first and scored imself a moment late on Fulghum's sacrifice fly to deep right. Final Score. The final score of the plainsmen was made in the eighth. Scott singled and stole second. He was safe at third on "Bill" Watson's error and scored on Lassiter's sky ball to left. Georgia made errors today, when errors meant runs. Auburn fielded perfectly and hit opportunely. Johnson was evidently very, very "right" this afternoon. He exhibited perfect control and was cool and calm throughout.	Totals	R. Miller, ss	Mails Stamps One. Cleveland, May 7.—Cleveland today defeated Chicago by the same score as yesterday, 8 to 0. Miss Alexa Stirling to Write British Golf Trip for Constitution

Eyes of every sport lover in Atlanta, in Georgia, and in the south are turned on England this summer, where Alexa Stirling, the Atlanta girl holder of the golf championships of the United States and Canada, and Bobby Jones, the brilliant young southern amateur, will struggle for the British amateur titles.

Recognition that these are pre-eminently the greatest sporting events in southern interest that the section has ever known, The Constitution has arranged for a feature in connection with the tournaments that will take every one of its readers right to the famous courses of Turnberry and Hoylake.

Miss Alexa Stirling will write a series of articles beginning next Sunday, which will deal with her British golding experiences. They will tell in detail everything about her trip, her reception by the British golfers, the styles of the famous British experts, and doubtless she will give graphic accounts of the tournaments in which she participates and which she witnesses as a spectator.

In preparing these articles Miss Stirling has been assisted by her father, Dr. A. W. Stirling. They will easily furnish the best sporting 50-Mile Drive by Beautiful Lake Bennett Fine All-Day or Afternoon Pleasure Trip Hanson MotorCo.

Today's drive covers a distance of fifty miles, which is somewhat longer than previous trips, and is one of the best all-day or afternoon drives around Atlanta.

Lake Bennett is the point of greatest interest. Here one finds facilities for swimming, fishing, bathing and picnicking. Lunches may be had on Sundays.

The trip is easily followed, even without the accompanying map and log. Just follow the car line to Fairburn, then at car barn in Fairburn turn left across railroad and follow heaviest traffic to Bennett's lake. On the return it is easy to follow the traffic by Fayetteville and Jonesboro, and the Dixie highway from Jonesboro to Atlanta via Hapeville and Stewart avenue.

The roads are fine, except for a portion of the way between Fairburn and Bennett's lake, which is not in good repair. A portion of 6.5 the road between the lake and Jonesboro is only fair, but the Dixie highway from Jonesboro to Atlanta is ex-

90 per cent of all cars have poppet-valve motors because there are no patents on them. They are common property.

The Sleeve-Valve Motor is not common property. It is strongly protected by patents in this country and abroad. Its sleeves slide up and down on a film of oil. It is leased by the inventor to an exclusive number of makers of exclusive cars.

It is used in one of England's finest automobiles. It is identified with the most famous car in France. It is inseparably allied with the greatest automobile in Belgium.

But the Willys-Knight is the first automobile in the world to use the Sleeve-Valve Motor in a car of moderate price.

What About Dorris Prices?

The Dorris slogan, "Built Up to a Standard, Not Down to a Price," means much to the buyers of fine motor cars, in times like these.

Recent improvements in the Dorris 6-80, which make it, in the words of a local owner, "A car seldom equalled and never excelled," are evidence of the policy behind this slogan.

Several hundred dollars have been added to the new models, in the way of refinements and improvements, and in view of this, we are authorized by the factory to Guarantee the present price against decline any time this year.

and others. In order that pupils everywhere may learn of the contest as quickly as possible.

The contest is a renewal of the ship by truck-good roads essay contest held last year in which more than 200,000 high school unpils participated. This dontest was won by Miss Katherine F. Butterfield, a 16-year-old pupil at the Weiser. Idaho, High school. Miss Butterfield is attending a celebrated eastern school under the terms of the scholarship which she won.

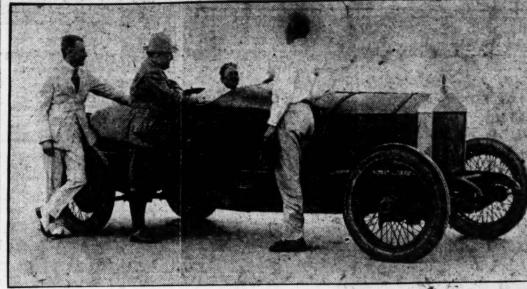

An added incentive is expected to be found by pupils in the honors which were paid Miss Butterfield recently by President Harding, who received her at the white house and presented her with the cettificate of scholarship during exercises on the white house lawn. Mr. Firestone, donor of this scholarship also, and members of the highway and highway transport education committee, together with others, were present. A group of pretty high school girls from the nation's capital were sponsors for Miss Butterfield during these exercises, and had her as their guest at a dinner and theater party afterwards.

Among the organizations working to make the contest a success are mentioned the bureau of education, the bureau of public roads, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, the American Automobile association, the National Grange, women's clubs, chambers of commerce, the American Automobile association, the National Grange, women's clubs, chambers of commerce, and many others.

The purpose of the contest is to acquaint high school pupils and their parents with the need for highway improvement throughout the nation, and the economic value of good roads as aids in production and distribution.

Members of the highway and highway transport committee, which has headquarters in the Willard building, Washington, are: Dr. P. Claxton, United States commissioner of education, chairman: T. H. McDonald, chief, United States

The Battery Sales company, a new authorized Vesta Battery service station, was opened at 44 Spring street last week, by C. C. Gibbs, and R. R. Rogers.

The new station is the first one to open on the new automobile artery, and is one of the closest-in service stations in Atlanta. It is located between Marietta and Walton streets, in a new building specially constructed to meet their requirements.

Mr. Gibbs is a well-known Atlanta business man. In addition to the many interests of his own, he is actively associated with A. G. Rhodes & Sons' various interests.

Mr. Rogers, has been connected with the battery business for more than seven years, having operated stations in Georgia and South Carollina continuously during this time.

E. C. Andrews, manager of the local Vesta factory branch, stated Saturday that the Battery Sales company had installed new and modern equipment, and taken every precaution to be in position to render the very highest type of service. However, he stated, the entire Atlanta Vesta organization stood ready to assist them in every way, if the need should arise.

This company, like other service stations, will give free inspection and water for any make battery, and maintain a repair department equipped to care for all kinds of battery repair, regardless of the make of battery.

Announcement was made on Sun-day, May 1, of a $600 to $900 reduc-tion in the price of Jordan motor cars.
A statement by President Edward
S. Jordan gives the reasons for the new price policy.

What Gives Owners Such Faith in Essex?

The people who know Essex rely on it chiefly, for the simple reason they have never encountered a situation of which it was not master.

More than by any other factor men have been guided in their preference for the Essex by the endurance and reliability which unmistakably sets it apart from other light cars.

Yet the confidence of Essex owners that their car will go anywhere, with a possibility of trouble so remote that it does not even enter into calculations, contains something more than a feeling of absolute assurance in its mechanical reliability.

No car could possess a more sincere belief in its goodness, its every-day dependability, and its capacity to do the task assigned without fret and fuss, than that which 50,000 owners bestow upon the Essex.

DOSS SECURES DEALER New 'Baby' Electric Equipped With Exide Batteries

Undoubtedly the latest thing in the electric vehicle world, and one that is of unusual interest to factory managers, plant owners and contractors, is the trim little electric car shown below—the automatic electric.

While this little car, comfortably seating two persons, has a promising future in the pleasure field, it is attracting palticular attention at this time among the class of users mentioned above. For, with its narrow tread of 35 inches and its short wheel-base of 61 1-2 inches, it can be driven almost anywhere that the factory manager has occasion to go—from one end of the plant to the other. The average factory alseles and doorways offer no barrier to its progress, and it may be driven on to elevators with as little trouble.

It has been said that the showing of this organization during the past few years has been among the best in the entire Reo sales organization.

G.H.McCutcheon Awarded $10.00 Contest Prize G. H. McCutcheon, one of Atlanta's most enthusiastic motorists, has been awarded the prize offered by the motors and highways depart. Mrs. Hattle Moore, the playground supervisor of the city. Mrs. Moore is eager to stimulate an interest in education along the lines of citizenship by means of dramatic expression. One of the little actors in Thursday's pantomime will be remembered as "Frida," who posed for the picture was so appealing that it was also used in other parts of the country. She also played the part of the little girl in the pageant staged at the Auditorium for the Armenians. These little citizens are enthusi-by the motors and highways department of The Constitution for the best suggestion for improving the maps and logs which are a regular feature of this section.

Mr. McCutcheon made several sug gestions which will be incorporated in the next printing of the maps published in March and April. Several of the many suggestions of-fered by Mr. McCutcheon pertained to the points of interest that were not mentioned, while the one which was adjudged the most valuable, pertained to the compilation and arrangement of the data.

Many other valuable suggestions were submitted by other prominent business men. Evidently the ladies are not familiar with points of interest around Atlanta, or possibly the stakes were not high enough for the great majority of suggestions made were submitted by the care and to make special mention of those submitted by the various men in the automobile business in Atlanta, as well as C. W. West, of the West Lumber company, and William W. Crane, a traveling salesman of the Cooper apartments.

COMMUNITY PLAYERS WILL GIVE PROGRAM

The Carolyn Cobb Community Enertainers will give the third program of the season at St. Philip's parish house Thursday afternoon, May 12, at 3:30 o'clock.

A Diamond in the Rough, DRUID HILLS HEIGHTS

Would You Take a Large Diamond if It Were Handed You? and the South Will Be Offered Homesites in the Center of the Greatest Development Known in Ten Years, at Their Price.

Wednesday, May 11, 2:30 P. M.

Situated on University Drive, just off Briarcliff Road, adjoining the home estate of Asa G. Candler, Jr., surrounded on all sides by millions of investment, in a section whose character is established. Free from factories, open sewers, negro set-tlements and railroads and on the highest elevation around the History repeats itself; people who have invested in new subdivisions located in the path of certain enhancement have always made big money. No one ever bought a homesite in as beautiful a North Side subdivision as well located that he didn't double and treble his money.

As short a time as ten years ago there wasn't a city convenience beyond Ponce de Leon Springs. You could count the houses on your fingers. Now look at it. They are three miles beyond and still going-and, in fact, have just started good. In another five years this section will be developed to Peachtree creek and Decatur.

What happened on every new street opened up in Druid Hills Section? A few years ago St. Charles avenue lots sold for $600.00, Moreland avenue $750.00, Ponce de Leon avenue $1,250.00, and today you can't buy these same lots for ten times these amounts. A hundred feet from Druid Hills Heights is Druid Hills proper, where you can't buy a desirable homesite for less than $50 per front foot, while last Thursday lots in Druids Hills Heights sold for one-third this DON'T YOU THINK A DIAMOND WAS HANDED THOSE PEOPLE WHO BOUGHT?

You man of moderate means, why don't you invest your money where it will double and treble in a few years. DRUID HILLS HEIGHTS IS THE LOGICAL PLACE. REMEM. BER, EVERY LOT SELLS TO THE HIGHEST BIDDER YOU FIX THE PRICE.

"First we ask for better school houses, longer terms and better salaries for our teachers. You are custodians of the educational fund of Georgia and the state has a right to get value received for every dollar spent in the education of the citizens of the state. It is impossible for the state to get value received as long as we have to teach our children in church buildings, lodge halls, rickety and unsanitary school buildings with the facilities such as are provided. The best brains of the negro race are not attracted to the teaching profession because the salary is inadequate." he continued.

"Second, we wish to ask for a negro state supervisor of schools. We realize that all of you are overtaxed with the duttes incident to your office affecting your own stroup and that you do not have the time and energy to give the consideration to the educational needs of the colored people that the need the time and energy to give the consideration to the educational needs of the colored people that the need demands. In the second place it is more difficult for you to interpret the needs of the colored people and secure the neessary sympathetic cooperation in meeting the same.

"Third, we ask that our school system in the rural districts be not made to conform to the local agricultural development, that the school term be continuous and not divided into so many parts as the farming activity of the community may desire. At the present time in many countless schools are operated for a few months when the negro children are not needed on the farms and are closed for the busy season and reopened at a subsequent lull in the agricultural industry. Many of our teachers are paid the small salary of $20 per month and $1.05 per capita paid for the education of the negro youth while $19.50 per capita, is paid for the white youth in the same county and the school term divided up into two or three divisions. It is impossible for the negro youth of Georgia to be adequately educated by a $20 per month

Declaring that by improving educational facilities for negroes the state would better itself, a large delegation of the Georgia Association for the Advancement of Education Among Negroes appeared before Superintendent of State Schools M. L. Brittain at the capitol Saturday and asked that a negro supervisor for colored schools in the state be appointed and that agricultural and mechanical institutions be provided for the race.

H. A. Hunt, of Fort Valley, president of the association, headed the representatives and introduced Professor M. W. Reddick, spokesman of the committee. Hunt assured the superintendent of the co-operation of the association and requested that the organization be given encouragement by white educational leaders.

Plea Made by Hunt.

"This deleagtion of outstanding colored citizens represents the educational interest of the negro people including social welfare organizations. Medical associations, insurance companies, business and commercial enterprises, lawyers, religious forces, the teaching profession as well as the common class of the negro folk," he said. Poles have erred artistically. The self-determination stunt and the fait accompli have become a bore. GREAT BRITAIN—There was no important development during the week in the miners' strike. The men are not showing any disposition to back down.

The transport workers are again debating a sympathetic strike or refusal to handle coal. In the Mersey more than 150 vessels are lying idle, unable to get coal. Unemployment in industries dependent on coal is increasing. At the labor exchanges some 1,800,000 are registered as unemployed. In addition many are on part time. The government is paying out per week for unemployment benefits about 1,700,000 pounds, The new defense force cost 400,000 pounds per week. The commons have prolonged these government's emergency powers. It may be found necessary to import coal, and if in such case the railwaymen and transport workers should refuse to handle it, only the emergency powers could save the situation.

An effort is being made toward resumption of the conferences between the owners and the miners chiefs.

It is reported that Moscow is greatly alarmed by the situation in western Siberia; that the peasants almost to a man are up in revolt; that strong forces have been dispached to put them down.

Brown & Randolph Seek to Oust A., B. & A. From Present Offices

The market raise in rental values is the basis for the claim advanced by the Brown & Randolph company in United States district court against the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad, which corporation they are seeking to eject from their present quarters in the Transportation building. The ground for the claim is that the lease under which the railroad occupies its space in the building specified that in the event the lessee became insolvent before the expiration of the lease.

That repeated demands have been made on the railroad for possession of the premises is set forth by the petitioners, who say that the rental being paid by the railroad is far less than that which should be charged.

Filed by H. H. Dean and Hollins Randolph, the petition says that the petitioner entered into the lease improvidently and asks that the court render judgment against B. L. Bugg, the receiver for the railroad, and require him to pay a reasonable rental for the property. Judge Sibley signed an order Saturday requiring Receiver Bugg to appear before him May 14 and show why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted.

MIND AND MEDICINE

ALL BODILY ACTIVITY IS CAUSED BY THE MIND! Correction of physical disorders involves increased activity of bodily organs. The CELLS comprising these organs must be especially stimulated. REGENERATOR accomplishes this in a natural and scientific manner. Regenerator is more than a medicine—it is DIFFERENT—it is in a field by itself; containing elements that build and strengthen the entire system. It embodies the most advanced scientific principles of treatment through the cells of the body; being the only preparation of this kind on the market today. It is a tested and proven product -the result of years of study and development, and has effected many remarkable cures of chronic organic troubles. Thousands testify regarding the merits of this wonderful TONIC; stating that it has given them a new hold on life. Not only does it act as a physical stimulant, but it strengthens the mental powers as well.

There is a ring for the bride, of course, chased with dainty Orange Blossoms, but the newest of wedding rings is the Orange Blossom Ring for the groom. It has plain beveled sides and a wide band of Orange Blossoms around the center. It is designed especially for The Man and is substantial and distinguished in appearance. They are made in both gold and platinum, and now that the double ring ceremony is accepted everywhere as fitting and appropriate, this ring has proven very popular. Genuine Orange Blossom Engagement Rings and Wedding Rings are featured by us. We want you to see them in solid gold, Platinum top and in all Platinum, with and without diamonds.

SILK hosiery is a love of every woman. She was never born who had too many pairs of it. That is why we have seized upon it to drive home the moral, the lesson and the import of the Anniversary.

IT makes a shining mark. It's prices are usually fixed. Today it is our pleasure to unfix them and to show our heels to hosiery retailers all over Dixie.

THERE are 8.660 pairs. more than 7.000 pairs in one group at one price alone. No store in the South ever turned such a trick in hosiery selling before. Concerning the rest of the country, we do not know. It is a large territory, yet we have our doubts. None the less, we feel sure that this occasion with its dizzy under-pricing of fine, very fine and finest silk hosiery is going to stand out as one of the salients in American retailing.

WE have dwelt upon the size of this occasion deliberately, but with no intention of bragging. It was because of the quantities and our cash we were able to buy at prices. There is magic in cash!

IT seems an age since good silk hosiery was sold at such savings. Since that is true it is certain that the pentup desire of lovely woman for lovely silk hosiery is going to break with a fell swoop at Rich's Monday.

Negligees You'll Love for Their Prettiness---Such Savings!

—Dainty, lovely!—adorably feminine down to the very last stitch. Only one thing we could see that could possibly add to their attractiveness-LOWER PRICES. Never did convince the manufacturer, either. Just simply wore him out with argument, and then signed for the negligees while he was still dizzy, or in a trance.

$19.75 Garments Are - - $13.50 $22.50 to $25 Garments - $16.95 $25 to $35 Garments - - $19.75

-Eighty-five negligees and breakfast coats in these three lots. Alluring feminine morning finery of Georgette crepe, chiffon, crepe de chine and messaline. Flesh, rose, peach, turquoise, maize, purple, black—just the shades you'd want to be here if we had asked you. Some of them in combination colorings.

-Many of them have lacy coats over accordion pleated skirts. Some of them are bewitchingly draped. Others in loose styles, caught with ribbon sashes. The breakfast coats are in taffeta—plain colored or in Dresden

$10 to $12 Kimonos - - $7.95

-A limited lot of these-and it's all too small. For they're the kind of kimonos brides and young matrons love to find. Of crepe de chine, in copen, flesh, rose, turquoise and peach. Shirred at the waist or sashed. Trimmed with tassels or rosebuds made of silk. Want one? Then, don't put it off too long, or they'll be gone$3 Athletic Girdles, $1.89

These are mighty good athlet-girdles. You'd have a hard fime finding more comfort when you're playing golf or tennis than by wearing one of these girdles. For they are made with rubber and give perfect freedom to every movement of the body. And they give you that much wanted uncorseted look that is so becoming in the wearing of sport clothes. They are made of heavy brocades combined with fresh, live rubber. In flesh color. Have four hose supporters: Sizes 22 to 30. -Second Floor

$1.25 Sateen Petticoats Are 89c

-240 in this lot. Made of good quality white sateen. Finished at the bottom with machine scalloping. Have double panel, back and front, so that it is necessary that you wear only one petticoat with your this summer dresses. Made with elastic at the waist line. In lengths from 32 to 36 inches. Don't let this opportunity slip by to get your supply at 89c

Regular $5 and $5.95 Japanese Kimonos, $3.98

-These kimonos are made of firm, closely woven cotton crepe. In rose, pink, blue and lavender. And very showily embroidered in hand work, in designs of Japanese landscapes and flowers. Embroidered with glowing or subdued colored threads. Made with regulation Japanese sleeves and wide sashes. They are just as pretty as can be and will be dandy for all-summer wear-because they launder well and are lasting! Tomorrow they'll hurry out at $3.98.

BOYS $1.50 Shirts, 79c

-Second Floor

-30 dozen shirts in this lot.

Made of solid white madras, soisette, poplin, basket weave and percales. Also striped percales in live colored stripes, either in single or cluster effects. Have collar bands and soft lingerie turn-back cuffs.

$1 Blouses, 69c

-100 dozen blouses in this lot. Made of striped percales on white grounds. Cut full and strong. Well made. Have adjustable waist bands. Pearl button trimmed. Collars attached. In sizes 6

$3 Suits, $1.89

—The Oliver Twists are made in blue, pink and yellow cham-bray, solid colored Palmer linen, bray, solid colored Paimer lines, checked ginghams and striped madras. The straight legs are made of one color and the waists of white with collar and cuffs to match trousers. Have big pearl buttons. Long or short sleeved. Briarstitched or smocked. Sizes 2 to 8.

The middy styles are of white poplin. Have braided collars in nayy. Sleeves show emblem and service stripe. Have black tie. Sizes 2 to 8.

-The Norfolks are made of striped galatea or of blue or brown striped Kiddie Kloth. Have braided collars and emblems on the sleeves. Sizes 2 to 8.

Boys' Wash Trousers, 39c

-Made of linene, Palmer linen, Kiddie Kloth and Tad Tassie cloth. In solid colors, stripes and white. These are odds and ends of large lots from a maker of good suits for boys. These trousers were made of short lengths of materials left from making up suit orders. That's why the price on 'em is but 39c. In sizes 2 to 7.

"Pearls"

Like Those from the Ocean's Depths ... at Anniversary Prices!

-Creamy in tint or pearly white-they're beautiful! Splendid imitations of real pearls—in fact, when they're clasped around your throat, who could say from a few feet distance whether they're real or imitations?

-So much for their beauty. As to savings—these prices speak for themselves!

-French filled pearl beads. Oriental finish. 22, 24 and 25inch length. Graduated. Highly lustrous. 10-karat swivel catch clasp. Regular $6 to $7.50 necklaces, each .$2.95 French filled pearl beads. Lustrous cream or white tints. Graduated beads. Lengths 22, 24 or 27-inch. $8 to $12 -French filled pearl beads, in 18 to 22-inch lengths. Straight or graduated beads. Cream or white tints. 10-karat clasps. $4 and $5 necklaces .....$1.95 -French filled pearl bead necklaces. Straight or graduated. 16 to 20-inch lengths. 10-karat gold clasps. Cream or white. $2 and $2.50 necklaces................................98e —Indestructible pearl beads, in necklaces from 18 to 22 inches in length. They're slightly "off" color, but you'd never notice it. If perfect, they'd be $2 to $4. As is......69c

Curtainings == 'Way Down! 36-Inch Marquisette, 39c Yard

-The cleanest, prettiest lot we've opened up in many a long day. They're in white, cream and ecru. Borders are hemstitched. 36 inches wide. 39c the yard is 'way, 'way less than regular for them.

50c and 65c Nets, 39c Yard

—Pretty filet curtain nets in ivory and ecru. They're fine. Won't they make attractive curtains, though? And the price—39c the yard—means a splendid saving for you.

85c to $1 Draperies, 69c Yard

-Filet curtain nets, 36 to 40 inches in width. In ivory, white and ecru. In small all-over designs and bolder pat-terns—a world of them from which to select. They're finds at anything under 85c to $1 the yard.

$1.50 Cretonnes, 49c Yard

-4,000 yards cretonne. 36 inches wide. In a big variety of patterns suitable for draperies, pillows and furniture covering. Last season these same cretonnes sold around $1.50 the yard. And they're far, far under this season's price at 49c.

The ring-bearer was Master Lamar Jeffers, Jr., carrying the ring in a snow white rose. The bride entered the living room with Miss Frances Martin, while Mr. Rosser was attended by Lon Hollis.
The maid of onor, Miss Martin, was attired in a handsome costume of brown and gray Canton crepe and a brown lace hat. She wore a corsage of Richmond roses.
The bride, a lovely brunet, wore a smart semi-tailored suit of navy blue tricotine with a quaint poke bonnet hat and veil to match. Her corsage was Ophelia roses.
Rev. E. W. Hagood, pastor of the Baptist church of Oxford, in a beautifully impressive manner produced the words that linked the lives of these two young people, the ring service being used.
The bride, who has been the popular teacher of expression in the high school at Oxford for the last two years, is a brilliant young woman and a gifted reader. She is a teacher of marked ability and by her conscientious and painstaking work in her department has made numerous friends and admirers during her connection with the high school.
This marriage is the happy culmination of a romance that was started two years ago when the young couple met each other in a distant city.

Mr. Rosser and his bride left immediately after the ceremony for a weedding journey to Washington,

The house was very attracively arranged for the nuptial event. The improvised altar in the living room was banked with ferns, palms and rosses with burning white tapers placed here and there among the greenery. The entire house was beautiful with quantities of ferns and pink Dorothy Perkins roses which were used in abundance, giving the scene a decided atmosphere of springtime and love's young dream.

Previous to the ceremony Miss Elizabeth Walden and Miss Alice Norton sang, accompanied by Miss William Ingram, who also played the wedding march, Lohengrin's bridal chorus.

Movement Shows Great Advancement

The eighth annual convention of the Georgia Congress of Mothers Parent-Teacher associations, which was held the past week in Atlanta in Wesley Memorial auditorium, showed marked interest and growth in the work carried on throughout the state in every channel of the association.

There were 200 organizations represented in the morning and afternoon sessions and the reports read by the delegates representing each of these associations proved that the Parent-Teacher organizations have been splendid and foremost factors in the progress of A significant fact to be noted is that the fathers have become vitally interested in this school club work, and in many school associations a fathers' auxiliary has been formed, which leads directly to the high standard of things educational in which the women of the Parent-Teacher organizations have blazed the pioneer pathway.

Noteworthy among the strong points accomplished and reported this convention were the raising of funds to pay teachers' salaries and keep the school open during May; the installation of sewerage in rural schools; the passing of bond issues to build new schools, and the improvement of school buildings and yards.

Child welfare in the home, school, church and state was brought into discussion and featured at the convention, and through the Parent-Teacher organizations these points will be reached and treated in the manner most necessary and first in importance for the child.

The Parent-Teacher association stands for democratic and thoroughly well-ordered ideas, and has a vision for the future welfare of the children of the state. Great steps in educational work and plans have been developed in Georgia and the Parent-Teacher clubs have guided and conducted a number of campaigns. The past year has been the most successful in history under the splendid leadership of Mrs. Charlton P. Ozburn, the president, who reported at the convention that 7,522 active members are now enrolled and are distributed among 127 clubs, the largest number the state has ever had since the Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher association was organized. A department of citizenship to study the new obligation recently laid upon women has but recently been added to the 22 departments included in state work. The other departments include Americanization, better films, children's books, child welfare, child hygiene, community social life, education, finance, juvenile court, home economics kindergarten, legislation, membership, mothers' circle, pre-school age, adult hygiene, church Parent-Teacher associations, school associations, parliamentary law, press and publicity, school, home and child welfare magazines, thrift, ways and means.

Another point recommended at the convention by Mrs. Ozburn was that funds be raised through the finance committee and a trained organizer be secured; that provision be made for the traveling expenses of the state workers and for clerical assistance; that the local associations stress the better health program, and in the enforcement of the compulsory educational law, support the Smith-Towner bill and others of importance to education and to the welfare of the children, that they emphasize the need of a high school education; insist upon the need for a juvenile court in every county and the establishment

One group of posters was "well-are of bables," and a placard bearing these words was placed over it. Another was "welfare of children," with a similar placard. The national pennant in white and "babb blue," the colors of the child welfare department, and a frieze of pictures of children playing, surmounted these groups of beautiful picture posters. The background of the pictures in the frieze was the blue sky, in harmony with the color scheme.

In the center of these groups was a poster giving the five-pointed program of the child welfare department; to an education; to be protected by child labor laws; to be morally safeguarded; to be spiritually trained. In keeping with this program was a group of ten posters on "religious education," and the value of good books.

Mrs. R. L. Turman, chairman of the recent rummage sale, reported the receipts of the sale as $195.85.

Mrs. Newport, principal of the Tenth Street school, gave an exceedingly interesting report on what had been accomplished by the teachers. They have taken in from different entertainments and sales and have expended on the school over a thousand dollars. The association gave a rising vote of thanks to Mrs. Newport and the teachers for the splendid work they had done.

The nominating committee submitted their report and the following officers were unanimously elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. E. D. McDonald; secretary, Mrs. C. R. Tidwell; treasurer, Mrs. E. A. Stuhrman.

The following resolutions were adopted by the association:

"Whereas, the practice in our city of the numbering or otherwise marking of the ballots of voters at elections is undemocratic, and has been condemned by a large body of our intelligent citizenship; and

"Whereas, the placing of primaries and elections during the summer months makes it practically impossible for a majority of our teachers and for a great many other citizens who are away on their vacations to exercise their right to the ballot; therefore, be it resolved.

"I. That we request the city executive committee to formulate such rules as may be necessary in order to abolish the practice of numbering or marking ballots.

"2. That we ask said committee to make such regulations as will forbid hereafter the placing of primaries or elections during the months of June, July, August and September."

English Avenue Parent-Teachers. The English Avenue Parent-

Teacher association will hold its regular meeting Monday night, May 9, at 7:45 o'clock, in the school auditorium. Mr. McCalley will talk on the three different planes of high schools under consideration of the board of education. We wish a re-port of the different committees for the year. Election of officers for the new year must be held this month.

Distinctive Feature.

This distinct feature of the Tech High association is already strikingly in evidence, and no doubt at many points will lead its parentteacher activities into new scope. It has been decided to hold the monthly meetings at night, as this will insure full attendance.

At its first meeting the association with marked unanimity placed itself on record as opposed to the suggestion to merge Tech High in a cosmopolitan co-educational system; and though an executive committee, headed by E. Marvin Underwood, now hopes at the pleasure of the board of education and other officers charged with the decision of this question, to present a petition which will represent the united voice of the patrons of this school, at the same time setting forth general reasons why it is felt that the distinct value which Tech High represents in the educational system of the city depends from conveying strictly the present lines of its development and progress, and that this could not be done if it be merged into a new co-educational plan.

Next Meeting. ed into a new co-educational plan.

ward and the children are busy and happy.

Next Meeting.

The next meeting of the association will be of much interest. It is to be held just before the close of the present school term, or on Tuesday evening, May 24. Larger quarters and a more central location are desired for the meetings, and for this reason arrangements will probably be made with Wesley Memorial church to hold the May meeting in its hall. A special feature of this meeting will be a demonstration of the curriculum of the school by the students themselves. The bos will show in concrete form how the classroom and technical exercises are conducted, each distinctive branch of the instruction being represented in this program.

Also at this meeting a constitution and by-laws are to be adopted and standing committees appointed Plans by which the association can best co-operate with the faculty in producing the highest degree of scholarship, as well as the other problems which will again claim active attention with the opening of school next fall, will be discussed, and it is expected that measures strengthening the organization for all its future work will be set in motion.

There is a wonderful spirit of co-operation between teachers and public will swinch adds to the efficiency of our school.

Miss Rainwater's class, seventh grade, is becoming well versed in bird love, and they take early morning walks to the woods to learn the calls of various birds.

The "pie social" of last week was a complete success, as a social it brought mothers and teachers together in pleasant intercourse; financially it netted the association and by-laws are to be adopted and standing committees appointed plays of a chool next fall, will be discussed, and it is expected that measures strengthening the organization for all its future work will be set in motion.

Mrs. E. E. Fulton, formerly of Atlanta, but now of Savannah, stopped over here for a day en route to Saluda, N. C., where she will spend the summer, having leased the Pace house there.

By Washing It.

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries, the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified coccanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get Mulsified at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—(adv.)

Junior League Follies One of Brightest Events On Calendar of Week

May 23, 24 and 25 are the dates set for the Junior League Follies of 1921, and these dates are being marked for special attention on the calendar of the several thousand people who enjoyed the Follies of 1920, as well as the several hundred others who could not get tickets after they heard how good the performance was.

drick Scott.

Donald McDonald, last year's coach, took up this year's program last Monday night, and he stated afterwards that the large company of young people—the Junior League and friends learned more in the first rehearsal than in a whole week of last year's preparatory period.

More than a hundred young men and women are in the cast, and the program is divided into three big acts, each with many specialities, taken from the most recent musical and dance extravanganza of the New York season.

The Follies will be put on at the Atlanta theater, with Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday matinee.

The run-way this year will extend the length of the theater, down the center of the house.

One of the acts will be a medley of old-fashioned songs, a soloist singing the verses, with chorus of boys and girls, while the audience will join in the chorus. This number is expected to please the older people, as all are the songs they knew in their childhood.

Dudley Woodward will sing "Daisy," and the chorus will be Misses Anne Hart, Alice Stearns, Mary Carroll, Dorothy Bates, Venice Mayson and Mrs. Gunsaules. In this song the boys will ride on bicycles and sing to the girls.

"Daisy, Daisy," Give me your answer true I'm half crazy, All for the love of you.

We can't afford a carriage:

But you'll look sweet, upon the seat Of a bicycle built for two."

The announcement is an interesting one that Mrs. Edwin Sawtelle, wife of the organist of the Howard threatre, and a singer of concert experience, will be the soloist in one of the most striking episodes.

District Meetings Reveal Fine Unity of Purpose

The outstanding needs of Georgia as Georgia women see themthe conditions which they consider most urgent of correction-and the unity of purpose among Georgia women to rectify what is wrong in their state from the woman's viewpoint, are things which are having striking emphasis just now in the deliberations of the District Federations of Women's Clubs in their annual meetings.

Beginning early in April and continuing through May, these conferences are bringing together the federated club women of every part of the state. The meetings are sectional, for purposes of convenience, and also for a better handling of matters purely local to the districts.

A reading of the reports of the district conventions already completed, and the announcements of those yet to be, reveal, however, a thread of common interest which binds the federated women together in a unity of purpose which is as strong and smooth as if all the ance.

The preamble to the council's con-stitution is a particularly fine defi-nition of high purpose and co-oper-ative spirit

It says: "We, Jewish women, sincerely believing that a closer fellowship, a greater unity of the thought and purpose and a nobler accomplishment will result from a wide-spread organization, do therefore band ourselves together in a union of workers to further the best and highest interests of humanity in fields religious, philanthropic and educational."

district of the Valentine bill, to be brought before the coming session of the legislature which would regulate the hours and conditions of work for women in industry.

The unanimous purpose of the federated club women, their well organized activity to get what they know is for the good of their state, has another illustration in the recently organized state legislative council, which brings together for concerted action, and, therefore, increased the were the legislative committees fro mevery woman's organization.

In a larger but a similar way the women of the nation are coming together.

There seems to be no longer any room for a merely tolerant attitude toward their club, their societies, as negative institutions for killing time or exploiting personalities.

It is difficult even to smile over their unbusiness-like methods, their proverbial quibbling over details, because their methods are not unbusiness-like. They are systematized, as well as their meetings, and they choose for their presiding officers women who know how to unbusiness to make mistakes—they are not infallible—they are doing almost better than might have been expected.

Through long and tedious effort, when they were only partially organized, and new to organization methods, they accomplished quite a good deal.

Coming out of the infant class of organization, they are proving highly precodous, and while they may make the mistakes of youth and comparative inexperience, they can go far with those other quali-

Hon. Paul Turner, in a few well chosen and appropriate words, introduced the orator of the day.

General Harris' address was in every way worthy of the glorious occasion. A filial love for a confederate hero father and a fraternal love for comrade sons of confederate sires who fought in the world war by his side fired his soul to flaming heights of feeling and eloquence which swept the entire audience on with him.

So forgetful were all of time's flight that, almost before he seemed to have well begun, he closed his address, while the thrill of it kept pulsing through his hearers' hearts.

In all, they have given $30,000 more in scholarships than any other particitic organization, she said.

L. W. Branch in introducing Mrs. Harrold paid tribute to the work of women in keeping alive the glories of past achievements, and said it was especially appropriate that a woman should be called upon to give expression to these high sentiments on Memorial day. Mr. Branch said it had been two generations since the first gun was fired at Fort Sumter and that few are alive who participated in the events of these days. He spoke of the radical changes that have come about since the war, the vast progress made, and declared that the memories of the days of the sixtles permeted all these great achievements and would continue to live as long as patriotic organizations worked to perpetuate the best in our traditions and history.

The entire program was delightful and inspiring. The confederate veterans were given a place of honor or down near the front and they entered the school auditorium in a body.

Memorial day dawned with dark clouds above, and for a while the dreaded rair seemed very near, but the sun soon won its way despite the threatening shawers and shone brightly down upon the gathering crowds of Marietta's enthusiastic people.

The parade was led by the Georgia Railway and Power company band, sent complimentary by Preston Arkwright, of Atlanta, a very great and pleasant addition. Next followed in the procession the Red Cross nurses, the Boy Scouts, fir-ing squad from Fort McPherson, the veterans, Memorial association. U. D. wreathes over their shoulders, the most beautiful and distinctive feature of the occasion.

How our hearts brightened at the sight of their happy faces, and te sight of their happy faces, and youth as they moved rythmically onward. Memorial dal without the children would be a failure in Marietta.

Dr. J. H. Patton, of the Presbyterian church, announced the program and introduced the orator of the day, Dr. L. A. White, of the Baptist church.

The program was as follows:
"America," sung by all, standing, the little children's sweet voices blending in so harmoniously. The memorial address by Dr. White was full of fire and pathos, and the truth that never can be hidden, "why our fathers fought, bled and died for the cause of the south," was one of the best ever given, and never to be forgotten. In answer to the bugle call of "taps" the firing squad from Fort McPherson fired three volleys over the graves of the soldier dead.

The Virtues of Our Ancestors

Mrs. Minor in one of her messages tells us that a deeper meaning than mere pride of ancestry underlies our society.

Pride in our ancestors is only a hollow boast if we do not try to make ourselves worthy of them. Our society is a means, and a very powerful means, to this end. It is an instrument of service. Loyal American women are needed by this country today as never before to do their share of loyal, patriotic educational work. Let them declare the faith that is in them. Let them by their influence guide others in the path of sane patriotism. Have we still that living faith in the Divine law and guidance which brought the Mayflower across the Atlantic?

Are the fundamental qualities of character building and justice the mainspring of our business and politics? along with our vaunted education do we build character? Are the every industry and thrift and the dignity of labor? Are these virtues too "old-fashioned" to have a part in our life?

Upon us lies the task of character building, of fostering, not the austere "blue laws," but the virtues to the path of the path of the path of the prevail, no radicalism can flour-the prevail, no radicalism can flour-the prevail, no radicalism can flour-the prevail that it is an interchery or treason and no degeneracy. To perpetuate our nation's ideals is one of our gravest responsibilities as a society. Let us realize that we are among the area the fundamental qualities of character buildings.

Only a few states were privileged to have rooms or definite memorials in Memorial Continental hall, and many have expressed a desire to have a direct part in the new building. Three states, as well as the National Officers' club, whose gift of $1,000 was presented for the auditorium at the congress last year, have already asked for rooms. The very beautiful party of the juniors given to the seniors on Wednesday afternoon at the handsome home of Miss Rebecca Ashcraft, president of the class, was the first evant of the commencement season of 1921. The spacious drawing room, with its bright wood fire, with its groups of vivacious young girls in afternoon frocks of delicate shades, made a series of living pictures most enjoyable to look upon and remember.

The last domestic science luncheon of the school year was given on Thursday to the mothers of the young women who were the cooks for the day.

The decorations were of roses and butterflies. The butterfly place cards were the work of Miss Eleanor Briggs.

In excellence of preparation and serving, this luncheon was equally as good as those given previously during the year, which is high praise. The efficient waiters were Athleen Dickey and Antoinette Smith. The excellent cooks were Cecelia Wrigles, Olive Marion, Elsanor Briggs, Ethel Dean and Elizabeth Robert.

> ALL SIZES

Cool, crisp little organdy dresses in solid colors, ruffled in every conceivable way—ruffled to look like miniature aprons—ruffles that frill the hem, the sleeves and around the neck. You can't keep organdy and ruffles apart, it seems.

The Swisses deserve a whole chapter to themselves. Dotted Swisses that are a delight to behold—white dots, red dots and dots forming rings, squares and other geometrical figures on dark grounds. Sometimes these are combined with solid-colored organdies.

The linens for the most part are tailored on slim, youthful lines of stunning simplicity. However, some show deep-bordered embroidery, braid-trimmed tunics, and unique pockets, belts or collars.

It would be impossible to describe them all, other than to say they are the most delightful, breezy, Summertime dresses you'll find anywhere, and we want you to come and see them in all their pristine freshness. Priced—

Plaids, Stripes and Pleats Sum Up the Skirt Question

The Silk Skirts go in for crepe, "slinky" Canton Crepe, Roshanna, Crepe de Chine and Georgette and the sport silks with a crepy surface—May Queen, Tal-Ly-Ho and Eponge. Plain colors and wide awning or rainbow stripes, $15.75 to $29.75.

The Wool Skirt renews its beauty in cream, plain or combined with vivid stripes—rose, henna, jade, porcelain blue, tan, brown and so on. Such skirts as these will be worn all summer long with sweater or smart blouse. $15.75 to $19.75.

Other Wool Skirts in the darker plaids and stripes and variously pleated are quite moderately priced at $7.75 to $19.75.

A Graduate In Your Family This June?

The most significant feature of the investigation is the fact that, with the testimony of the devirtually at an end, not one scintilla of evidence has repeated charges of as many county grand juries to the effect that for more than three years a gang of bunco steerers, confidence men, consciousless swindlers, disreputable grafters and common, everyday, "garden-variety" crooks, prachere, holding full sway over the detective department, presenting gold watches and other valuable gifts to ex-officio members of the police board, forcing, in some inwhile, it was conducting its coreither residents of, or transient so- erty.

But in the light of all of the evidence thus far adduced, we do not see how the committee can possibly do otherwise than to concur in the conclusion that has been reached by three consecutive grand juries!

The report of this committee goes to council, and from council it will go to the police board.

But, after all, the final tribuna before which the whole issue may be carried is that of the people sitting in solemn judgment at the ballot box!

If relief is not obtained as a reult of this investigation, then just as certain as day follows night, that is the tribunal to which the issue will be carried, and, if it goes there, there can be no question as to the verdict!

If relief is not obtained before hat step is necessary, every man who offers for council this fall will be brought face to face with the issue now on trial.

An expression will be demanded of every councilmanic candidate by the decent men and women of this city!

If the Augean stables cannot be leaned otherwise, the hose will be turned on through the channel of the next municipal primary. It is to be hoped this will not be necessary, and that relief may be obtained this side of such a step. But if it is necessary, and if the fight comes on that issue we shall quickly see whether or not this city approves the domination of its detective, or any other branch of its police department by an organopments in the municipal history ized band of bunco gangsters, political rinsters and crooks of the all the preliminary details for the Public sentiment will welcome such a fight as that!

WEAR A POPPY

In keeping with a newly-inaugu rated custom, every American is urged to wear a red poppy upon Memorial Day, May 30, as a mark of loyalty and respect for the memory of the boys who sacrificed their lives on the fields of France during the world war.

This is a beautiful custom, pa every respect.

It was in a moment of inspiration that the late Colonel John Mc-Crea fixed forever in the mind of mankind the poppy as the sacrificial symbol of tender respect for those who died in the world war

And then, "The Dark Forest" and the "Under Fire" re-vealed the secrets of the prison house and we found that war was only very muddy and a horribly boring job. After Lenin and Trotz-ky's more deplorable coup in 1917, we thought that life under the bol-shevik was just one mad excitement after another. But now we have read Mrs. Sheridan (first only because one must give place to the ladies) the Honorable Bertrand, Russell and Mr. H. G. Wells, and we know that life in Russia must be dull beyond the dreams of Puritanism.

Probably all well-informed people had known about it for several years, though Mr. Arthur Ransome's "Russia in 1919" did not give one SPLENDID WORK were still some shops; one could still buy a theater or an opera ticket and see such simple-minded plays as "The Cricket On the Hearth." They are quite evidently a type of Englishwoman, but not a very pretty type. Mrs. Sheridan seems to be quite irresistible; she got along famously with Kamenev, whom she met in London and who took her to Moscow to do busts of the bolshevik chiefs (perhaps to annoy her cousin, the Right Honorable Winston Churchill, M. P.) with Trotzky, with Vinoviev and the rest, though apparently she made Trotzky, with Vinoviev and the rest, though apparently she made very little off of Lenin. The description of her reception by Mrs. Leo Kamenev is very funny; it was apparently about as Cordial as. Clytemnestra's kell-known reception of Cassandra, though less bloody.

This viewpoint may be summarized as follows: By reason of its was to leave no doubt in any mind loans, its credits and its foreign that while seeking an adjustment firmer ground. It recognized that Great Britain was a jous to avoid any military action. It preceived that there was great opposition to such action in many political circles in the United Kingdom, and that, in addition, there were obvious selfish and material interests which made it only natural that the British should not wish to see the French seated in the Ruhr and masters of the best coal deposits of Europe. posal the new administration definitely undertook to associate itself

It did not desire to mediate between Germany and the allies: it did not desire to pass judgment upon the Foch and Poincare, could take a German propositions when made; it was uniquely interested in undertaking to set in motion again the processes of discussion thus preventing a break down of all discussion and the reversion to something which suggested war and

Lift Off with Fingers the decisive factor in the whole discussion. First of all what was discussion. First of all what was the German purpose? Was there a sincere desire on the part of Berlin to reach a solution of the question, to find a basis which lay within the limits of possibility, from the German viewpoint? In a word, was the position, assumed at London, taken in good faith or was it one more German maneuver?

If it was maneuver, if German statesmanship were trying to separate the United States from the rate the United States from the limits of all what was which might hopefully open the way to postponement of military action and reopening of discussions. It assumed that since Britain was even more interested than the United States in restoring economic order in Europe and in forestalling any new disturbances, British politic would rally to American and act to restrain French impatience, provided only Germany selzed upon Mr. Hughes' proffered opening to make a real proposal, something tangible and solid.

In the last analysis, however, all rate the United States from the European associates of the war, to make the United States the champion of Germany against the allies and thus to escape all payment, then it was quite obvious that the whole undertaking would be fraught with grave dangers. There was sound reason for believing that German faith was no better than it had proven on every occasion since July, 1914, and in that case we might find ourselves once more in the situation President Wilson had occupied when Germany made her dishonest peace offensive of 1916.

But Lloyd-George had passed his word to Briand in London. Moreover Lloyd-George was aware that over Lloyd-George was aware that if Briand yielded on this question he might fall and be succeeded by Poincare. And with Poincare military action would be inevitable and Great Britain would be compelled to choose between seeing France act alone, thus losing all influence and power of restraint and rither abpower of restraint and rather ab-jectly following the French lead. Would not Great Britain, then, welcome an American gesture which would have its effect in restraining France and, at the same time, measurably absolve Lloyd-George from his promise to Briand?

In the last analysis, however, all depended upon what the Germans would offer. If their offer were would offer. If their offer were reasonable, then the administration could meet all criticism from all directions with the evidence furnished by the proposal itself. It did not purpose to pass directly upon the proposal, but preserving the fiction of diplomatic procedure, to act informally and take no step until the British. French, Italian and Belgian governments had said that they were willing to receive the German proposals, not as final, but as a basis for discussion. And obviously the hope was that the German response would be such as to enable the allled decision to be reached in advance of the decisive session of the supreme council of May 1, when the German default would technically occur and action would be possible to coerce the defaulting nation.

Decide to Run Risks.

There were, I repeat, the gravest sort of risks, but there was, too, an American and a world interest of transcendent importance and, with that in mind, Mr. Hughes and his associates decided to run the risks.

that in mind, Mr. Hughes and his associates decided to run the risks. We may now turn to the German response: It was, as might have been expected characteristically vague and complicated. But when it was stripped of all its mystery it amounted to just this: At Versailles the Germans had been bound to pay $26,000,000,000 plus, the plus representing the amount in addition to $26,000,000,000 which the reparations commission should determine upon. At London, in March, the German indebtedness had been fixed at $26,000,000,000, 321,000,000, payment due on May I, and to that sum had been added a 12 per cent foreign trade tax. In their proposal sent to Washington the Germans offered to pay $12,500,000,000, which represented less than half of the sum fixed at London and at Versailles and they abolished the export tax feature. Actually they offered to pay $12,500,000,000, as compared with $33,000,000,000, which the reparations commission later settled upon as the final sum of indebtedness.

But in making an offer representing approximately a third of the allied figure the Germans surrounded their proposal with a multitude of conditions. There seemed to indicate that the allies, if they accepted the German offer. would surremer all their powers of enforcement, including the occupation of German territory, as fixed by the treaty of Versailles. In addition they were bound to break the terms of the upper Silesian plebiscite provision, which obligated them to give to Poland such districts in upper Silesia as voted for Polish annexation. Having thus recounted the progress of the American operation it remains necessary to look for a moment at the European aspect. What, after ail, is the true difficulty in the case of reparations? Is it inability for political reasons, as Mr. Hughes' course would seem to imply he believed, to arrive at a fixation of a reasonable sum? Or is it the fact that Germany having no intention of paying any sum, is endeavoring to use the United States to divide her enemies and thus arrive at her own destination, which is escape from all payment?

And even if we, with British support, prevent the French now, how can we again intervene if the Germans once more constructed. the several European nations who were allied against Germany difference in the same will be paid? President Wilson faced the same problem at Paris, Tardieu has told the whole story in his new book. In the end Mr. Wilson succeeded by offering France the American alliance, but President Harding was elected upon a platform which forbade just such entangling alliances. Yet if we refuse to offer our own guarantee, how can we prevent French from taking their own form of guarantee, which is the occupation of the Ruhr?

The whole crux of the reparations the several European nations who were allied against Germany differ widely. For France it is a mathematically for my death, for a death, financially speaking, to get reparations and to get not less than the sum fixed at London. A smaller sum means fiscal bankruptcy. For Belgium the stake, is only slightly less. But the Italians' share in the indemnity is small, less than a fifth of the French, while the British are actually more interested in getting them market of central Europe settled than in collecting German indemnities.

An Atlanta Industry for Which the Red Hills as of any city in the north.

NE of the great northern cities, in advertising itself to the world as a city of varied industries, claims that "diversity is the surest safeguard against adversity." Certainly this is as true of Atlanta

Atlanta is not built on any one industry. It is the great central market of the southeast, with every branch of industry imaginable represented. What is not manufactured here is at least distributed from here. Our interests are as varied as human needs and capabilities, And it is because of this great diversity of interests that many times some of our most important industries go unnoticed until they loom so large on the business horizon that we are compelled to recognise them. This is the case with the tent and awning business

How many people in Atlanta know that "local manufacturers make and ship out more tents and awnings than any other city in the southand, with one exception, more than any other city in the country?" Very few. And yet this is the case.

And how many people in Atlanta know that the foundation of this great industry was laid here during the war between the states and was the direct outgrowth of that conflict?

Back in 1860 A. Ergenzinger, a native of Germany, opened a small shop in Atlanta and served the public as a maker and mender of upholstered articles and awnings-awnings such as those days-awnings that were merely large pieces of canvas stretched over unsightly looking frameworks in front of stores and business

Before the business had time to get well under way along the tines originally intended the civil war came on, and there was a sudden demand for tents and tarpaulins for the confederate armies. This was the real beginning of the tent and awning business in Atlantaa business that today employs hundreds of operatives and one that has done more to advertise this city to the world than most people

Thus, born of war's necessities, it would seem that there was fighting blood in the veins of this young industry-fighting blood that has brought it to the front and made it thrive. At any rate, the progress of the tent and awning business in Atlanta has been nothing short of

HIS letter is one of the ten winners in The Chicago Tribune's 1921 Fighters' contest. Others will appear in this section during the next few weeks. There is inspiration in every line. Every merchant-wholesale and retail-and every salesman should read this letter. "And, as a result," he says, "my customer bought eighty-two cases of table fruits and sold practically the entire lot to his retail trade."

This-instead of a cancellation! Turning a long face into a smiling one—a cancellation into a bigger contract—a slump into heavy sales+ dead depression into active demand-are the accomplishments of th fighting salesman whose letter is given below. Resourcefulness and determination, combined with aggressive advertising, will ALWAYS put to rout those coward bogies-fear and discouragement, 119 South Central Avenue, Los Angeles, Cal., February 8, 1921. 1921 Fighters' Contest, The Chicago Tribune.

I have been a salesman in the employ of Armour & Co. at the Los Angeles, Cal., branch house for about five years, and never since I have been with this firm has it been such a fight to sell to my customers. I have a territory including all of one county and part of another, which I cover by auto once a week.

Adverse Conditions in California as Elsewhere.

Conditions here in the business world are probably similar to the conditions in other parts of the country, especially in the grocery and smoked meat lines. Dealers in these goods are afraid to buy now. A great many of them are stocked with quantities of goods which were purchased at high war prices, and which they will undoubtedly los money on because of the declining market. Prices on food commodities are being lowered so rapidly that merchants are ordering only what they must have from week to week. They do not intend to lose more than they inevitably must. That is all very well for Mr. Grocer, but Mr. Salesman finds himself spoiling his sales record at an alarming rate. And if he does not use every effort of brain, ingenuity and will he doesn't get orders, that's all.

A salesman has to fight to win. I have certainly discovered that for myself recently if I didn't know it before. And the fun of the fighting is almost as good as the winning if one knows he has given

New Customer Cancels Five Case Order.

About two weeks ago, January 17, to be exact, a new customer of mine, Holland & Holland, of Anaheim, Cal., canceled an order of canned goods, amounting to five cases. It was a small order, but I could not afford to let it go without an effort to retrieve it. So I went to see him the next day. I found that he had a quantity of goods in stock similar to that which he had canceled, but under competitive brands; so assumed that was the reason he had not given me the order. He had purchased these goods at high prices several months previous.

THERE are many pitfalls for the creat man in performing his collection duties and it is necesary for him to move very cautious-

Bookkeepers cause trouble by posting invoices in wrong accounts or by failure to enter a remittance correctly. As a result the credit man writes to the customer requesting payment of the bill. Some credit departments require all checks to pass through their hands to apply them to their delinquent records. as occasionally a customer will pay in cash, and the bookkeeper will fail to give a memorandum to the credit department. A common mistake of the bookkeeper is to cost the account of a customer in the wrong statement, thus the customer who perhaps owes the house nothing receives the statement showing a balance due. This mistake usually occurs when the statements are headed in advance, and the bookkeeper fails to discard the statement of a customer whose account is paid in full but enters upon it the debits and credits of the account appearing on the following page. okkeepers cause trouble by Customers are continually returning goods, very often due to some shortcoming on the part of the seller and if credit memorandums are not rendered promptly the unsuspecting credit man at times communicates with the customer asking for a check covering the account and receives a rude awakening. It is almost as important to render credits promptly as it is to mail the invoices and a system which does not make this provision needs renovating.

Disputes of various kinds are continually arising regarding invoices and if these letters land in some other department without being referred to the credit manager he is very likely to request payment and thereby annoy the customer. The remedy for this unsystematic procedure is to first refer to the credit department in a tactful way.

When will building construction revive? This is the question on all lips at the present time.

The answer is contingent on so many variables that few men dare or desire to make a definite prophecy on the subject. The most they will do is to discuss the situation, analyze it and draw up a hypothesis, and let time work out the proof thereof.

First of all, building construction will not revive until the present "consumers' strike" is ended. From all indications this strike has been precipitated by continued high prices of certain fundamental materials and labor, and high freight proceed at once. Others, however, will be held up still longer by the prevailing high rates existing on money for building purposes. In this situation the banks of the country must furnish the relief by showing their willingness to accept something less than they are now receiving on building loans.

In conclusion, it can be said that the removal of any one of the above cited causes for the "consumers' strike" will not mean an immediate revival of building construction. It will necessitate the elimination of the first three, at least, viz.: High-priced materials, high-priced labor and high money rates, to start all indications this strike has been precipitated by continued high prices of certain fundamental materials and labor, and high freight and money rates. Until these causes have been removed the "strike" will continue. The question then resolves itself to this, "When will the parties in question see the light and remove the causes which are stagnating industry in general?"

In the material market the trouble seems to be that the market is not controlled by the law of supply and demand. Now to say that the prices would drop greatly if this unusual condition ceased to exist would be far from the truth, the general conditions being such as to preclude such a possibility. The main thing is the people wish to be shown that the interests are back on a normal basis. The prices of lumber and brick have been material reduced.

To the prospective builder the present prices on sand and crushed stone for concrete work seem, and rightly so, too high as compared with pre-war prices. Other material items are still a trifle out of line, but inasmuch as they are a relatively small item on a job, they affect the final cost but little.

Reduce Labor and Materials.

ACCEPTANCES WIL

The credit man has some sins of his own. In this connection he occasionally irritates a customer who is perhaps a little slow, but whose business is desirable by withholding delivery of a trifling order until he pays the overdue balance. This action has at times resulted in the loss of the business. It is especially aggravating to the customer when he sends a mechanic or messenger to the store for a few articles which he needs badly to have the order questioned. These uncomfortable situations should be avoided by filling the order and the matter of payment taken up with the customer in a different manner. Actual Experience Proves Trade Acceptance Big Factor in Improving

BY E. W. SHEPARD, General Credit Manager Western

We believe that customers giving trade acceptances would im-prove their credit standing rather The credit department occasionally uses the telegram injudiciously in collection work by sending them collect and the result very frequentity is to put the debtor in the humor of withholding payment just as long as possible. The principal fault of the credit man, however, is to dictate his dunning letters in an improver tone, for psychology plays a very important part in obtaining the desired results. Few debtors can be clubbed into paying their bills whereas a most generous response will be received to a pleast on the overdue account is suggested.

If a check is tendered and the buyer has omitted his signature and after the check is returned holds it for a week or ten days, he is not entitled to the cash discount. Sales department influence is quite often. taining a better net return on their investment. This would mean better buying or smaller stocks and more prompt collections, or the obtaining of trade acceptances from their customers. In the beginning these improvements in the customers methods of doing business were largely theoretical, but we feel confident that the experience of those who have used trade acceptances and our own experiences, given later, will show that these results have been actually obtained.

Like all other business organizations, our aim is to increase the net return on the investment. In looking at trade acceptances from this viewpoint we were convinced that bankable paper at a definite date would reduce losses, and when discounted increase the turnover. Some opponents tell us that trade acceptances lengthens terms, but when used properly they shorten terms or quicken the turnover and most users have found that they do. One of the pleasant incidents of the annual meeting was the courtesy extended to Presley D. Yates, of Ridley-Yates company, of this city. Mr. Yates was unable to attend the convention because of a recent illness, but the members relected him chairman of the third division and in a lengthy telegram notified him of their action and of their regret that he was unable to be with them.

Among the Atlantans who attended were: J. C. Little, of Daugherty-Little-Redwine company; R. K. Rambo and J. P. McDaniel, of John Silvey company; John E. Morrison and F. H. Atlee, of A. M. Robinson company; Walter C. Barnwell, of Ragan-Malone company, and H. Mendel.

Automobile Situation. Revival of the passenger car business of the motor industry is at a more rapid rate than had been expected, leaders in the industry declared. On the other hand, the truck end, which many business problets had considered more stable and sure of rapid return, is lagging behind the passenger car, though some Improvement is reported.— Detroit Dispatch in Boston News payee, or indorsee, to see that the tax, if one is due, is paid before or at the time of acceptance or delivery.

The stamp tax on checks and drafts, including acceptances, attaches to such instruments as are payable otherwise than at sight or on demand, upon their acceptance or delivery, whichever is prior, within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States. The rate of tax is 2 cents on each $100 or fractional part thereof. On amounts not in excess of $100 the tax is 2 cents. Tax at the same rate is also imposed on promissory notes, except bank notes issued for circulation, and upon each tenewal of the same. Misunderstandings frequently occur in regard to the taxable status of an instrument which on its face appears to be payable at sight, but which as a matter of fact is payable at a future date, because of some collateral agreement between the parties. The department has ruled in this connection that liability to tax, as well as the amount of tax is determined by the form ruled in this connection that liability to tax, as well as the amount of tax, is determined by the form and face of the instrument and can not be affected by proof of facts or instructions outside of the drafts or checks. A draft expressed to be payable at sight on "arrival of car," or embodying a memorandum to hid until arrival of car, has been held to be taxable, while a sight draft accompanied by instructions outside the instrument deferring time of payment is not taxable. A draft stating no time for payment which is accepted for payment at a certain future date is taxable upon such acceptance as a time draft. Post-dated checks expressly payable after their date are taxable as time drafts.

drafts. In Foreign Trade.

In Foreign Trade.

The federal constitution prohibits congress from levying taxes or duties on articles exported from any state. The treasury department has therefore ruled that time drafts, directly covering exports to a foreign country and which constitute an inherent, necessary and bona fide part of the actual process of exportation are exempt from tax. Time drafts drawn against the proceeds of the foregoing, however, are subject to tax. Time drafts directly covering sales for export to a foreign buyer and drawn on a domestic bank as the authorized acceptor from tax. The same is true of drafts drawn abroad on a foreign drawee with a foreign payee, passing through a bank in the United States in the course of collection, unless delivered by an agent of the drawer to an agent of the payee within the United States. Time drafts covering shipments to the Virgin Islands, the Philippines and Porto Rico are exempt because of legislation exempting shipments to these dependences. The federal constitution prohibits dencies.

The department has ruled that (1) drafts directly drawn against an actual shipment, (2) time drafts drawn on a domestic bank for the purpose of securing money to purchase goods to be exported, (3) time drafts drawn by or on an exporter or on his bank in payment for export drawn by or on an exporter or on his bank in payment for export shipments made by the manufacturer on the exporter's order, and (4) time drafts not covering exports, drawn and delivered or accepted in the United States and payable in foreign countries, are taxable.

Time drafts covering articles shipped from the United States, Hawaii and Alaska to the Canal zone are also taxable, if the drafts are delivered in the United States, Hawaii or Alaska. This is also true of time drafts drawn against shipments from the Virgin Islands, the Philippines and Porto Rico Into the United States, if delivery or acceptance of such drafts first takes place within the United States, Alaska or Hawaii.

States, Alaska or Hawaii.

Regarding Renewals. Promissory notes, including demand notes and those given for security only, are taxable on the same basis as drafts, both parties thereto being, responsible for affixing and cancelling stamps in the required amount. Renewals are also taxable. Mere suspension of payment or forbearance is not taxable nor does the mere payment of intaxable. Mere suspension of payment or forbearance is not taxable nor does the mere payment of interest on a demand note constitute a renewal within the meaning of the law. On the other hand, where interest is paid in advance after the maturity of a promissory note, and as evidence of such payment, an indorsement is made on the note showing that interest has been paid in advance to a certain date, such indorsement operates as a renewal, and the renewal is subject to tax. Likewise, where a contract or agreement extending either a chattel or real estate mortgage operates to extend or renew a promissory note secured by the mortgage, the renewal of such note is taxable. The treasury department has ruled that promissory notes given to federal land banks and joint-stock land banks when secured by first mortgages, promissory notes issued by Federal land banks, promissory notes issued by Federal land banks, promissory notes issued by foreign governments and placed in this country for sale, and promissory notes secured by United States bonds and obligations issued after April 24, 1917, of a par value of not less than the amount of such notes, are exempt.

Taxable, Coupons.

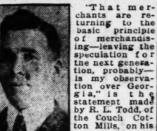

Taxable, Ceupons.

The department has also ruled that coupons attached to bonds, debentures, or certificates of indebtedness sisued by an individual, partnership or corporation, or to instruments, however termed, issued by a corporation and known generally as corporate securities, are not subject to tax if they impose no obligation not imposed by the principal instrument. Interest coupons attached to promissory notes, if they are themselves promissory notes separable from the principal obligations and negotiable independently of it, are taxable, even though they impose no obligation not imposed by the principal instrument.

Promissory notes executed and mailed in the United States to payees in Canada are taxable, but promissory notes executed and mailed in Canada to a payee within the United States are not subject to tax. Policy loan and premium extension agreements which contain an unqualified promise to pay a specified sum of money at a certain date must be stamped, but in such cases where the sole remedy of the payee in case of non-payment of the premiums or loans is to reduce or cancel the rights of the insured, the tax does not accrue.

Promissory notes issued by joint-stock land banks and promissory notes secured by bonds of the war finance corporation are taxable.

WINNERS AT TECH

Twenty Graduates of 1921 Senior Class Will Wear Ribbons of Great Honor Society.

At the graduating exercises of encement week at Georgia Tech, twenty members of the present senior class will be particularly honored. When the class of 112 men appears in cap and gown to receive diplomas, 20 men will wear the ribbon of Phi Kappi Phi, great national honor fraternity which has a chapter at Tech. These men were elected last fall at the beginning of the senior year, but public announcement of the election has been withheld.

The usual round of commencement festivities will begin on Thursday, June 9, and will run through June 13. Graduating exercises will be held on the campus on Monday morning, June 13.

Election to Phi Kappa Phi is the highest honor a student at Georgia Tech can have bestowed upon him. Men who are elected each year are the leaders in scholastic work and student activities. From the time a boy becomes a freshman at Tech until he gains the coveted honor of being allowed to sit in peace on the senior bench under the great oaks on the campus, he hold Phi Kappa Phi as a great goal to strive for.

After reviewing the list, it will be seen that Atlanta has two representatives in this body. They are Edwin Madison Eastman and Claude Augustus McGinnis, both of the civil engineering department. Both graduated from the city high schools and stood well in their classes, and

WHY YEAST

Thousands Stay Thin on Ordinary Foods, Because They Lack Vitamines-Now Obtainable in Tab-

No matter how heartily we eat, if certain all-important telements, talled vitamines, are lacking in our diet, we will be under-nourished. Only in the last few years have these elements been known, and now scientists recognize that nearly all cases of anemia, neurasthenia symptoms and run-down condition are simply due to a lack of vitamines. And yet we must have a constant supply of these miraculous little organisms which alone are so essential to health and vitality. And now it has been discovered that a small quantity of ordinary yeast, taken regularly, will supply all the vitamines needed for glowing health. Added to the diet, yeast makes old people younger, restores energy and normal weight to the thin and run-down, and has a wonderfully beneficial effect on grow-ing children. Yeast also clears upbad, pimply complexions and banishes boils.

"The Miracle of Yeast" is still a new thing to most people, but yeast's amazing value as a health-builder has been proven beyond doubt by numberless experiments in great medical institutions. The real problem of scientists has been to obtain just the correct form of yeast. This is known to be brewer's yeast. The common yeast cake is ineffective because it is only about 20% yeast and the rest starch and water. At last the perfect yeast combination, highest in vitamine-strength, has been worked out by famous and the rest starch and water. Decatur has one representative in Frank Garrett Thomas, who graduated from Boys' High school in 1914. Mr. Thomas was out of school for more than two years, during which time he was with the American army in France. He is a student assistant in the experimental engineering laboratories at Tech.

A total of fourteen men are from the state of Georgia. Florida has four men, and Alabama and Arkansas each have one.

Below are given the names of the successful men, the departments from which they will receive degrees, their home addresses and brief mention of the important school activities in which they have participated:

Names of Winners.

Frank Logan Asbury, Jr., of Clarkesville, is the only representative from the textile engineering department. Mr. Asbury was the manager of the football team, the famous Golden Tornado, of 1920, and is a pitcher and captain of the 1921 baseball team. He is president of the honor court and a member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity.

Sidney Conyers Bleckley, of Clayton, will graduate from the electrical engineering department. Mr. Bleckley is a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

Carl Boone, of Newnan, is the one representative from the commerce department. He is business manager of The Blue Print, the college annual; is a prominent member of the Marianettes, the Tech Names of Winners.

John Lilburn Carr, of Montgomery, Ala., will receive his degree from the electrical engineering department. Mr. Carr has done unusually good work.

Calvin J. Des Portes, of Columbus, is also a representative from the electrical engineering department. He is a winner of the "Gold T," leader of the mandolin club, and is a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Edward Madison Eastman, of Atlanta, will receive his degree from the civil engineering department. In addition to having made an enviable record in scholastic work, Mr. Eastman is one of the three student quartermasters.

Lauren Russell Harbaugh, of Winter Haven, Fla., comes from the department of engineering chemistry. In the three years that he has been at Tech, Mr. Harbaugh has done exceptionally good work.

Calvin Samuel Hays, of Macon, will graduate from the electrical engineering department. Mr. Hays is secretary of the college Y. M. C. A., a student quartermaster, an honor roll and "Gold T" man, and a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

Athens Student.

Edward Deloney Sledge, Jr., of Athens, is the fifth man to come from the civil engineering department. Mr. Sledge is a student dormitory official and is a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. Frank Garrett Thomas, of Decatur, will graduate with a degree in mechanical engineering. He is another veteran of two years' service with the A. E. F. in France. In addition to carrying his regular course in school, he is a student instructor in the experimental engineering laboratory.

George T. Trawick, of Linton, will be the fifth man to receive his degree from the electrical engineering department. He has made the honor roll and has made the 'Gold T'' for scholarship.

Thomas Eskridge Twitty, of Pelham, is another man of high ranking to come from the mechanical engineering department. He is a member of the glee club and is a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

Famine week," the period during which an intensive campaign has been carried on for the relief of millions of famine sufferers in northern China. In Atlanta, as well as throughout the south and, in fact, the entire country, the Chinese famine situation will be presented from the pulpits of all denominations. This co-operation on the part of the clergy is the result of a special appeal that has been made by the American relief committee through the various regional organizations and local committees of volunteer workers.

The task of securing funds to provide food supplies for the starving Chinese is, to a large extent, in the hands of the churches, although organizations of various characters have been active in promoting the movement. The sale of "life saving stamps," which is an important feature of the campaign for the China famine fund, will be continued for the present, at least, since the critical point in the famine situation has been reached and it is necessary to sustain the population in the famine area until the June harvests. The new crops will provide a permanent remedy.

One of the interesting features of the relief work is the activity displayed by the negro churches of various denominations. This is particularly true in Georgia. The negroes now have a state committee functioning effectively throughout the state, having headquarters in Atlanta and headed by Rev. R. H. Singleton, pastor of the Big Bethel Baptist church on Auburn avenue.

All funds thus far contributed have been exhausted in the purchase of food supplies distributed in the famine area, according to advices received at the southern committee headquarters. It is necessary to raise additional funds to tide over the famine victims until

How It Safeguards Each Community's Welfare

The South is an out-of-doors country and that means a country where kiddies grow into strong, straight, courageous boys and girls.

One need only to observe the eager animation of our children to know and to feel the contagious joy of living under southern skies.

And in order that these little bodies may be kept nourished and in fine physical tune for study and play, our mammoth organization with its army of three to five thousand employees, devotes itself to the sole task of making possible the endless variety of fruits and foods always displayed where foods are sold.

The long trainloads of delicious fruits—the wonderful variety of ocean fish that can be enjoyed hundreds of miles inland—the milk that keeps our babies cooing and growing—the dairy products that lend a relishable change to our daily menus-transportation and retailing of fresh meats-the cooling of beverages-the making of delectable ice cream—the merciful, refreshing ministration of ice in hospitals—these are possible in the South only because of the gigantic network of ice manufacturing plants, spread over the Southeast and operated for you by our company.

Yet the smallest purchase you can make from our drivers commands not only his utmost carefulness and courtesy, but the appreciation of our entire organization.

Woman throughout the ages and her struggle for the rights inherent in her sex this is the theme of Allen Holubar's elaborate produc-tion, "Man-Woman-Marriage," described as one of the most brilliant spectacles since "In-

Although based upon a modern love story, the drama of womanhood from the earliest ages forms a most important part of the picture and provides the production with all the gorgeous settings of a pagan past. The picture is a nine-reel production of the Associated First National Pictures.

The dominant note of the story is faith. Faith on the story is faith. Faith on the part of woman that right must conquer might. That love will find a way to overcome the malignant forces which have robbed her of the rewards of her love, devotion and striving for the better things of life. It shows how in the crucible of time woman has worked out her own salvation. It traces the ascendancy of the sex through the opalescent haze of mythology, down through the centuries to the present. It depicts courtship, marriage and the fiery furnace of inevitable misunderstandings which occur when wealth, power and alienation estrange the man from his life partner, woman.

as full of old-time philosophy and the same spirit of buoyancy and neverness.

The book is an old-time romance of a tumble-down apartment house somewhere in California. It is a story of back yards and next door neighbors. Penzie is our real heroine, and she is one of those kind of motherly characters whose big sympathetic heart takes in all the back yard contingent and mothers a family of stray waifs, stray dogs and in fact all the stray bits of humanity that lived in the group of tumbe-down tenements called "The Custard Cup."

Penzie makes room in her big heart and limited home for Thad and Crink and "Ten-Second Lettie," for Filibuster Caesar, the pup, and Bonnie Geraldine, the little red hen. Don't think for a moment that Penzie is one of your sickly sentimental type, for she is shrewd, quick to detect hypocrisy and honest with herself and the world, and she has that saving grace, a sense of humor, and fun sufficient to Ithaca, New York, used to sit enthralled as she watched the stars of the silver screen live through the romances in which they appeared at her favorite motion picture theater. On Sunday, as she sat in the choir of the church where she was a soloist, she would dream, like every other girl she knew, of some day playing a similar role herself, but never even in the wildest flights of her fancy, did she believe that she would be given an opportunity to satisfy her desires.

Until several weeks ago she still thought that she would never see herself on the screen. Then fortune suddenly smiled on her and since that day she has already played two roles in the support of great stars, has seen her face flashed before the audiences of the Rivoli and Rialto, New York's greatest picture theaters, and has filled her scrap book with column after column of newspaper articles about herself. She has hobnobbed with the great ones of the screen world and has even taken a week-end trip with the foremost players in pictures to be one of the leading figures at the opening ceremonies of a magnificent new theater in one of the leading cities of Canada.

"Heartbalm" is expected to establish the reputation of Mack Sennett as a creator of legitimate plots. First of all, it is a love story. Comedy is a by-product. It is a picture intrepretation of its own title. Sennett reverses the situation that marks most of the sex-relationship plays and shows how the man pays. nett reverses the situation that marks most of the sex-relationship plays and shows how the man pays. Something unusual, but Sennett is given to the unusual habit. For the real plot players he has Ethel Terry. Herbert Standing. Noah Beery, Robert Cane and Ben Deely. These players are noted for numerous successes in serious roles. It was Sennett's method of notifying the picture world in advance that "Heartbalm" was a play of essentially dramatic appeal. The comedy roles are entrusted to members of his regular organization—Charlie Murray, Dot Farley and James Finlayson. The question now before the Sennett aggregation is "Can the maker of the world's chief supply of humor in films persuade the world to suppress its chuckles and restrain its hilarity long enough to pass critical judgment on a production not primarily dedicated to giggles, laughs and shrieks, but to authentic dramatic purposes?" "Heartbalm" will have its premiere in Los Angeles, after which its release by Associated Producers will follow.

Al Roscoe has been engaged by Metro to play opposite Alice Lake in her new Metro starring picture, a story by Arthur Somers Roche, for which a title has not yet been announced. Mr. Roscoe has just completed work in the leading male role in support of May Allison, in the blonde star's recently completed picture. "The Last Card."

In Miss Lake's new vehicle, which was adapted for the screen by Edward T. Lowe, Jr., and is being directed by Wesley Ruggles, Mr. Roscoe will enact the part of a broker who, through a chain of circumstances, arouses the enmity of a girl who thinks he has wronged her lover. Her attempts to ruin him after she gains his confidence by obtaining employment in his office, go to make up an uncommonly interesting story.

Screen Translation of Stage Success, "My Lady's Dress."

"Blind Wives" is the title of the est big special production which casts." ill be seen at the Rialto for one ereen adaptation of Edward Knobk's international stage success, "My Lady's Dress," is one of the most powerful arguments that ever found its way to the screen. It strikes at the very vitals of woman's vanity. It tears a costly gown to pieces, and shows you the poor, miserable elements toiling in darkness and suffering who have manufactured the dress. It shows you the length to which some women will go to arouse envy in the eyes of their sisters and admiration in the hearts of men. And finally it shows you the woman crushed with remorse, and putting aside her folly, to sink in utter humiliation before the husband who had humored her at the cost of tremendous self-sacrifice and overwork.

In making this most pretentious of fox productions it was found necessary to stage a complete fashion show, in order to localize properly one of the most graphic incidents of the story.

The producers enlisted the aid of Lucille's (Lady Duff Gordon), the 'My Lady's Dress," is one of the Mack Swain With Chaplin.

All picture fans will remember Mack Swain. For several years he was the hit of Mack Sennett comedies and as Ambrose he easily wore the crown for rough house mirthmaking. Well, Mack has returned to the screen after months of oblivion and will hereafter be identified with Charlie Chaplin productions. In his new environment Swain will create a character, which it is believed, will add laurels to his already large collection. He stands six feet four inches and weighs 340 pounds. He will be an admirable foil for the diminutive Charlie, His initial appearance will be in Chaplin's current picture, "Vanity Fair."

centry one of the most graphic incidents of the story.

The producers enlisted the aid of Lucille's (Lady Duff Gordon), moted modiste, with the result that those who have the privilege of witnessing the story of "Blind Wives," will be as intimate observers of New York's most exclusive fashion show as though they occupied the luxurious chairs in the famous Fifth avenue establishment. The same beautiful models that move with stately grace down the velvet carpeted aisles of this noted institution are introduced one by one, wearing a series of creations the total purchase price of which would rival a king's ransom. The gowns worn in this remarkable setting were made exclusively for this production, and represent an accurate forecast of the year's tendencies in style.

Then there are wonderful scenes from various lands that had each a part in the making of milady's dress. Scenes of strife and hardship and privation. There is, in fact, so much of the unusual in "Blind Wives" that it will live long in the memories of those who see it.

"His Meal Ticket." a brand-new Fox Sunshine comedy, will furnish the laughs.

dian was incarcerated there.

It all happened lke this:
Three weeks previous to the birthday. Buster severely sprained the ligaments in his right leg. He was sent to the hospital, where expert medical attention was bestowed upon that necessary member. The day prior to his mother's birthday he was to be discharged. The attending physician, hearing of the plans for the party in honor of Mrs. Keaton, deemed it advisable to keep the solemn-visaged comedian in bed another two days. He feared that Buster would attempt to join in the celebration, and that the injured leg would be endangered as a result.

When the guests arrived at the Keaton domicle and discovered that Buster was not present, there were many expressions of danpointment. Then the suggestion was made that the celebration be held in Buster's room at the hospital. Plans were hurriedly changed, automobiles loaded and the pilgrimage to the hospital was under way. Fifteen minutes later the party was on with Buster as one of the guests, as originally planned.

Samuel Goliwyn is credited with saying: "In the future the very great writer will arise who will achieve a reputation that will endure for generations, and his films will be stored up and shown again and again for centuries."

Some of the sweetest romances ever told are those which develop after marriage, when the husband and wife, estranged or separated perhaps, are finally brought together again with that understanding that insures future happiness. Such is the romance in "The Easy Road," the new Paramount picture, starring Thomas Meighan, which will be shown at the Vaudette on Monday and Tuesday.

The husband, who in spite of hardships has achieved fame as a novelist, settles down on easy street with his rich wife to enjoy life. But with pleasure as his false idol, his life and his character deteriorate. His wife, in the hope of renewing his ideals goes abroad. The novelist goes from bad to worse. He is about to commit suicide when something happens that inspires him anew and he again becomes the man of old. The wife returns, halfthinking to get a divorce and marry another. The ensuing episodes show how both find happiness. Gladys George has the leading feminine role opposite Mr. Meighan, and Grace Goodall, Arthur Carèw, Maxine Elliott Hicks and Lura Anson are in the cast. A hospital isn't the most delirable place in the world to hold a birthday party, but that's just what happened in Hollywood's film colony a few days ago. The occasion for the celebration was the birthday of Myra Keaton, mother of Buster, Metro's star comedian. The reason for the staging of the celebration in the Good Samaritan hospital was that the agile comedian was incarcerated there. It all happened like this:

POET, RADICAL and ADVENTUREK

The Life Story of John Reed, Human Storm' Petrel and Soldier of Fortune, a Thrilling Document of a Revolutionary Writer Who Found Contentment in Hazards of War and Strife.

By EDWARD A. MUSCHAMP.

NEW kind of soldier of fortune, and an American at that, who prowded into his young life of thirty-three years more hair-raising adventure than the average cosmopolite experiences in a lifetime, died the other day in Moscow, Russia.

When the cable brought the news that John Reed, the former Harvard song and cheer leader -described by the editor of the Metropolitan Magazine as "poet, radical, war correspondent," had fallen a victim of the dreaded typhus fever in the new-ancient capital of Russia, it seemed to his friends-and to the thousands who knew him only by reputation and from his writingsalmost impossible to realize that he was dead. For in the ten years since Reed was graduated from Harvard with the degree of Bachelor of Arts, he had been almost everywhere, done almost everything and had so many thrilling and narrow escapes from death that his friends had come to believe that he enjoyed a charmed life.

A full-fledged American, both by birth and ancestry, John Reed so widened his interests and acquaintances during his four years at college, and particularly during the last ten years of his life, that he was as intimately known to "Pancho" Villa and his erstwhile revolutionists in Mexico and to the leaders of the Bolshevik revolution in Russia, as he was to the writing world, the official world of the Federal Government at Washington, radical industrial and political movements and parties in this country and throughout Europe, and to the police of a dozen or more American cities.

For Reed was indeed a storm petrel of the most modern variety. He was an avowed radical in all things, a confidant of Lenine, the Russian Bolshevik Premier, and when he joined the Socialist Party a little over a year ago, at the time of the split in that organization during the convention at Chicago, he promptly allied himself with the "Left Wing"-as the most extreme radicals were called, and later with the Communist group. His ardent-and his friends say his sincere-beliefs in the matter of free speech, brought him into frequent clashes with the police in this country; while his well-nigh unquenchable thirst for adventure brought him into almost as frequent conflict with the authorities all over Europe.

Conservatives in literature, as well as in politics, damned him for what they regarded as his ridiculous and dangerous revolutionary utterances, but, figuratively speaking, frankly took their hats off to him as a descriptive writer of extraordinary ability, a dynamo of energy and a fearless searcher after thrilling adventure.

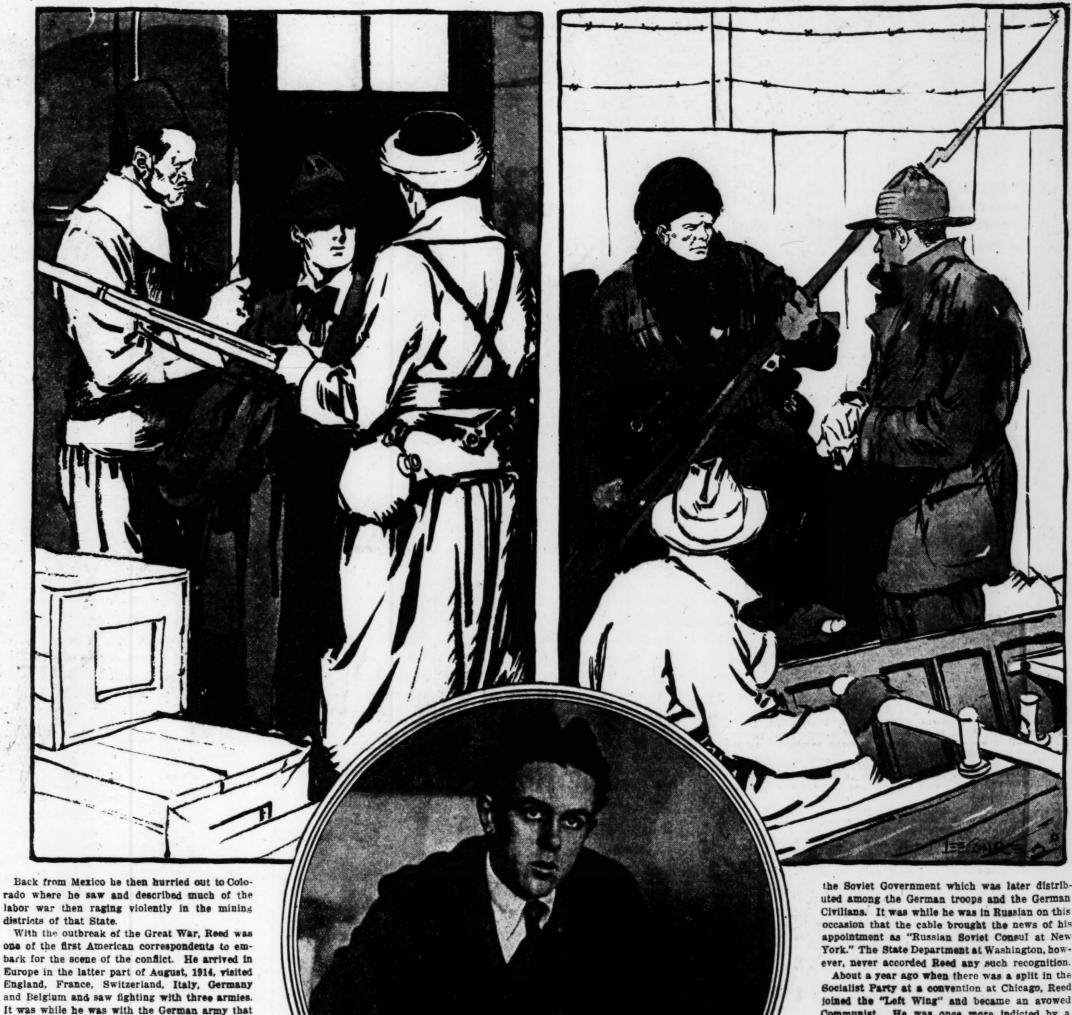

Reed was born in Portland, Oregon, on Oct. 22, 1887, where his father, Charles J. Reed, was a United States Marshal. After graduation from the lower schools, Reed entered Harvard, from which he was graduated in 1910.

For a while he lived in Italy and took a more or less active part in certain phases of the Italian labor movement, making speeches at times to groups of the Italian Syndicalists and conveying greetings from certain factions of the American labor movement.

All the while he was continuing his writings for various publications, and when he returned to the United States, along about 1913, he went to Mexico as a war correspondent for a magazine and newspaper. Mexico was then in a state of revolutionary upheaval and here in the United States we were getting only more or less fragmentary reports of Villa and what he was doing as one of the chief leaders of the Constitutionalist Army.

Reed, as usual, was looking for real action and adventure and not merely for official reports, so he joined the Villa forces as a correspondent. but he did more than that-he marched with Mexicans, raided with them, danced with them and drank with them, and then risked his life with them. At the famous battle of Torreon he was what in present day movie parlance we would call a decidedly "close up" observer.

The news despatches and articles that he sent back to this country gave by far the most graphic and dramatic picture of what was going on below the Rio Grande, of anything that had been published. As one of his intimate acquaintances has well said, "Whatever John Reed could touch or see or smell, he could convey."

JOHN REED, AUTHOR AND ADVENTURER.

United States and one month later he and Boardman Robinson, the illustrator, sailed again for Europe. On this trip he became involved in the historic retreat of the Russian Army through the Carpathians. By a curious coincidence he was in Serbia at the time that that small nation was devastated by typhus fever, but escaped, then, the very disease which news despatches now tell us caused his death in Moscow.

iHs experience in joining up with the Russian forces was an adventure in itself. He and Robinson were in Bucharest and applied to the Russian Ambassador for permission to join the retreating army. They were informed by that functionary that it would be necessary for them to go to Petrograd to get passes, which would involve a delay of three or four months. Naturally this programme did not appeal at all to either Robinson or Reed, so they went to the American Minister and got from him a list of American citizens located in various towns through which it was expected the Russian Army would pass on its retreat. Then one night these two adventurous journalists crossed the River Pruth in a small boat and landed themselves percepitately at the Russian front. They were immediately seized by Russian Army officers and sent north shead of the retreating army, through Bucovina, Galacia and Poland, where they spent two weeks in jail. When they were released they went on to Petrograd, only to find themselves in more hot water, the incident occurred which later caused more or less commotion not only in the Allied countries but in this country, and subjected Reed to considerable criticism. It was charged that while in a German trench, merely that he might experience the sensations of firing off a gun in the Great War, he directed the fire of a rifle or machine gun on the Allied lines. Later Reed maintained that he merely discharged the weapon

into the air and that he did not actually participate in any direct action against the Allied

Early in 1915 Reed was again back in the

for as Reed said in one of his books, "the American Embassy washed their hands of me." Robinson, it appears, was a Canadian subject and so he applied to the British Ambassador and in that way the two secured their release and thus got out of Russia.

They then decided to go to Constantinople, but Robinson could not make the necessary arrangements, and so Reed went on alone. He had been in Constantinople only a short time when he was ordered out of Turkey because the police had seen him "talking with too many Americans."

He had arranged to meet Robinson in Bucharest, but when the train on which he was traveling reached the border of Bulgaria, it was stopped and Reed was ordered off. However, when the train started again, Reed jumped aboard. He finally managed to reach Bucharest where he rejoined Robinson. They continued their journey and arrived in America in October, 1915.

In the summer of 1917 Reed again journeyed to Europe and found himself in Petrograd during the fall. The Czar had been overthrown that year and the Kerensky regime was tottering when Reed appeared on the scene. He had an interview with Kerensky just three days before the final crash came.

When Reed returned to the United States he brought with him not only vivid descriptions of the historic scenes that were enacted in Russia. but many important documents, all of which constituted valuable historical data. Upon his arrival here all his belongings were seized by the Government and thoroughly examined before he was given possession of them.

A striking illustration of Reed's extraordinarily keen sense of the dramatic is found in the title that he selected for his book which was to record one of the few American eye-witness stories of the Bolshevik Revolution-"Ten Days That Shook the World."

Reed, as a result of his verbal and written statements made here in the United States before he had sailed on this particular trip abroad, had been indicted by the courts, along with the other editors of a radical magazine called The Masses. After his return to this country he appeared in court and after a trial at which he refused to retract what he had written against war, the jury disagreed and he and his co-defendants were definitely released.

Reed then made still another trip to Russia. spending a large part of his time in Petrograd and Moscow preparing Bolshevik propaganda for uted among the German troops and the German Civilians. It was while he was in Russian on this occasion that the cable brought the news of his appointment as "Russian Soviet Consul at New York." The State Department at Washington, however, never accorded Reed any such recognition.

About a year ago when there was a split in the Socialist Party at a convention at Chicago, Reed joined the "Left Wing" and became an avowed Communist. He was once more indicted by a Grand Jury, but when this indictment was handed down Reed had again disappeared and as subsequent events have shown he made his last and fatal trip to Russia.

It is something of a mystery as to how Reed got out of the United States on this last journey. The next news of Reed came in a cable despatch which stated that he had been caught hiding in the hold of a boat in a Pinnish port and that the Government of Finland was holding him pending the receipt of instructions from the Government at Washington. Next came a cable report saving that he had been executed in Finland. But once more he managed to escape and after tedious delays reached Russia.

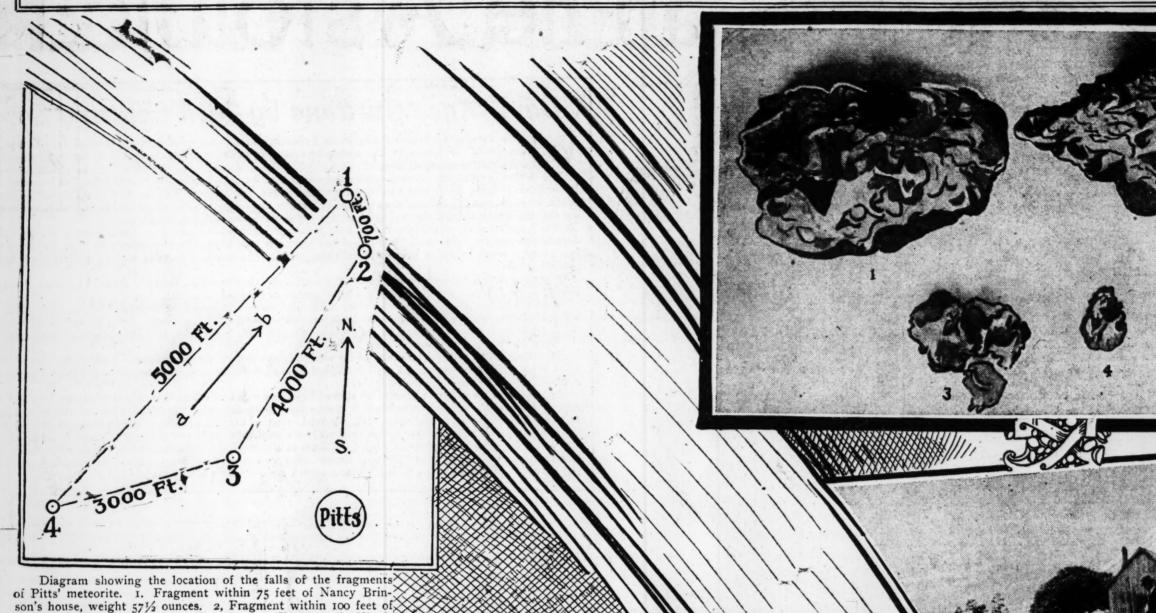

Reed's wife, Louise Bryant, herself a writer, who had also made several trips abroad and into Russia after the beginning of the Great War, recently reached Moscow, where she had gone as a newspaper correspondent. It is reported that she was with her husband when he died in a Moscow hospital.

Walter Lippmann, one of the editors of the New Republic, who was an intimate acquaintance of Reed at Harvard and a member of the same class, in an article about him a few years ago, made these interesting observations and com-

"By temperament Reed is not a professional writer or reporter. He is a person who enjoys himself. Revolutions, literature, poetry, they are only things which hold him at times, incidents merely of his life. Now and then he finds adventure by imagining it, oftener he transforms It into his own experience. He is one of those people who treat as serious possibilities such stock fantasies as shipping before the mast, rescuing women from fires, hunting lions or trying to fly around the earth in an aeroplane. * * * He is for the time the person he imagines himself to be. * * * He is not interested in the organized monotony and virtue of our civilization, which to him are unbearable. You would have to destroy him to make him fit."

Interesting Phenomena In Wilcox Described

teresting phenomena of its kind heretofore observed within the limits of the state. The meteorite which fell near Forsyth, Ga., May 8, 1828, and described by White in his "Statistics of Georgia" was probably of larger size, but it was not witnessed by so many people, nor did the attendant phenomena seem to be so impressive.

The Pitts meteorite fell in a negro settlement in the western part of Wilcox county, near the town of Pitts about 9 o'clock (eastern time), Apri 20, 1921. No clouds were in view, and the sun was shining brightly. I was seen as far north as Sunny Side, in Henry county, 36 miles south of Atlanta, and as far south as Moultrie, in Colquitt county.

In addition to the above towns that appear to mark the north and limits of its visibility, it was also seen at Camilla, Albany, Seville, Cordele Hawkinsville, Perry, Macon and Alma. It was no doubt plainly visible over an area of several thousand square miles, and could have been distinctly en by fully a quarter of a million people had they been looking in th

My attention was first called to the occurrence by press notices on 21 and on the 22d I received a specimen of the meteorite from Colonel W. H. Dorris, of Cordele, Ga., accompanied by a short description of the On April 24 I visited Pitts, with a view of securing at first hand all the data possible concerning the exact locality, the attending phe nomena, etc. A. C. Shell and other citizens of the town rendered me invaluable service in securing the information desired, and also obtained for me for examination and study all of the fragments of the meteorite except one, which specimen was later secured from the owner by personal request from Governor Dorsey. Several hours were spent in the vicinity of the fall ing the relative positions at which the fragments struck the ground.

The Phenomena. The attendant phenomena witnessed by the observers of the Pitts meteorite were similar in character and succeeded each other in the same order as that noted in meteorite falls in general. Named in order of their occurrence they were (1). a rapid moving body, often referred to as a fire ball; (2), a dense smoke in the wake of the fire ball, occa-sionally luminous for several min-ntes; (3), distinct boomings, gener ally compared to discharge of distant cannon, succeeded by a number of lesser sounds: (4), a roaring or whizzing noise not unlike the sound of a falling body; (5), the falling of dark body and its impact on the surface of the earth.

The rapidly moving fire ball was the first phenomenon that attracted the attention of the observers of the Pitts meteorite. It was described by witnesses at Albany as a rapidly moving body about the size of a man's head, appearing in the sky in a northeasterly direction. At Moulbody moving downward in zigzag course, looking as if it might fall in Sunny Side, more than a hundred miles from the place where the meteorite fell, it was seen in a direction, appare about 3 feet in diameter and 2,000 feet high, falling nearly perpendicular at a rapid rate.

The dense smoke in the wake of the flaming fire ball was referred to by the Albany and Moultrie witnesses as a luminous trail following the flaming ball. Colonel Dorris, who was in the vicinity of Pitts, speaks of the smoke as a zigzag trail, lingering for some minutes and as various shapes. These shapes were thought by some to be in the form of letters. Several persons in the immediate vicinity of the fall described the smoke as white or gray in color, and in the

The first sound heard was com many it was the first warning that any unusual occurrence was taking place in the sky above. At Cordele. 15 miles west of Pitts, the sound resembled that of a heavy explosion distinctly heard by several people on the streets. In the country, four miles east of Cordele, two terrific explosions were noted, louder than thunder, which so terrified the farm hands that they ran frightened to thought that an aeroplane had exploded above the city. In the im mediate vicinity of Pitts the sound was described as several loud explosions, causing the earth to trem ble, followed in quick succession by a number of lesser explosions.

The roaring and whizzing noise and the impact of the falling fragments were heard only in the imme diate vicinity of the fall.

An explanation of the different phenomena above given are as fol lows: The rapidly moving fire ball was the meteorite itself made self luminous by the friction produced in passing through the upper atmosphere. The high speed of meteorites when they first encounter the earth's atmosphere is said to from 7 to 40 miles a second. The smoke is fused particles of the meteorite brushed off from its surface as it moves rapidly through the air. The sound compared to booming of cannon and also the lesser sounds are supposed to be due to the explosion of the meteorite and the sudden heating of the surrounding air. The re tardation of the meteorite by the resistance of the air exerts a power ful disruptive force upon it since rear part of the meteorite tends to travel with planetary speed while the forward part is being checked whizzing and roaring noise heard some minutes after the loud explosion was produced by the fragments of the meteorite passing through the air. This sound was followed immediately by the impact of the falling fragment striking the INDIVIDUAL FRAGMENTS.

The location and relative distri bution of the points at which the fragments of the Pitts meteorite fell, are shown on the accompany ing diagram. The largest piece weighing 57 ounces fell (see diagram) within less than 75 feet of Nancy Brinson's house where it was dug up a few minutes later still warm, but not red hot as first reported. The fragments entered the freshly plowed sandy soil to a depth of about 16 inches forming an incon mous hole less than 18 inches in

The fragment is irregular, rhom boidal in shape, the three greater dimensions being 5.7, 3.2, and 2.3 inches respectively. More than twothirds of the surface shows the natural pitted characteristics of an iron meteorite coated with black iron oxide through which in places are to be seen patches of silvery white nickel-iron. The remaining parts of the surface are rough and angular with more or less sharp projecting points showing evidence of recent rupture from other fragments. This surface is more or coating of the other surface. This fragment is made up largely of nickel-iron throughout which, in irregular masses, occurs the stony material. The latter consists mainly of gray minerals interspersed with occasional greenish granule Polished surfaces of the iron portion of the fragment when treated with dilute nitric acid show the typical markings of iron meteorites. known as Widmanstatten figures.

A second fragment fell by the roadside within a hundred feet of Jim Harden's house which is 700 feet southeast of the Brinson house (see diagram). This specimen buried itself about 8 inches in the ground. It weighs 421/2 ounces and differs from the fragment above described mainly in showing more stony material and in being more irregular in shape. It also shows less of the naturally pitted surface but correspondingly more of the freshly fractured surface. This specimen is especially interesting as it fell within three feet of a negro boy who was walking along the road and as it furnishes data for reckoning the length of time intervening between the first heavy explosions and the time at which the fragments hit the ground. This time was reported by most persons who the meteorite strike the ground as about five minutes; but by timing the boy as he walked from the point at which he first heard the sound to the point where the meteorite struck the ground at his side, the time was found to be proximately three minutes.

The third fragment fell about

4,000 feet southwest of the second fragment (see diagram) within 100 feet of where a negro man and boy were working in a cottonfield. Only part of this specimen was seen as it had been cut in pieces. However, judging from the fragments it prob-ably weighed less than 30 ounces. It entered the ground only about seven inches and like the other fragments was warm when dug up.

The fourth fragment was picked 5,000 feet southwest of fragment No. 1 (see diagram). No one saw this fragment fall. Nevertheless it was at once recognized by the finder who had seen other fragments. This specimen is irregular, pear-shaped and weighs less than two The proportion of stony material in this fragment seems to be greater than in any of the others but it is otherwise similar. was the only fragment that did not bury itself in the ground which is accounted for by its falling on the

It will further be noted that the heavier fragments were found to the northeast of the area and the smaller fragments to the southeast. As the heavier fragments always travel at a greater distance than the smaller ones, this indicates that the meteo ite was moving in a northeasterly direction, which fact was confirmed

Meteorites. Dr. Oliver C. Earrington assigns the following three reasons for ascribing peculiar interest to the study of meteorites: 1. They are the only tangible source of knowledge regarding the universe beyond us. 2. They are portions of extra ter-restrial bodies.

3. They are a part of the economy of nature. No survey of nature can be considered complete which does not include an account of them. Meteorites are a mass of mineral matter which come from space to the earth. The masses may be divided into two classes-stone and iron meteorites, and also an intered iron-stone meteorites. range in size from a few grains to many tons, and their fall is usually accompanied by peculiar phenomena. both of sound and light. The Astounding

Dark Ages Outdone by 20th Century Sorcery

7 HEN the doors of the Eastern Pennsylvania Pententiary swung open a few days ago to admit John Keckler, the convicted "witch doctor" of Lemasters, the curtain was rung down on the closing chapters of an almost unbelievable court record of witchcraft as practiced today.

The witches in "Macbeth" performed no weirder rites than did John Keckler, the "witch doctor," of Lemasters, Pennsylvania. In old Salem tottering dames were burned at the stake for less. Yet, stranger than the fact that the incantations were offered in the twentieth century, and that same persons believed in their efficacy, is the sworn testimony of witnesses in a court of record that the witchcraft actually accomplished that which the doctor sought to bring about.

A colt, owned by the wealthy Heckmans, most prominent family in Lemasters, was taken sick with a strange malady. "Doctor" Keckler was sent for. He sewed, "with thread that had never been knotted," a piece of muslin, "that had never been washed," into a bag in which he placed writings of cabalistic nature. This bag he suspended over the stall of the sick colt. And the animal got well.

A pig owned by the Heckmans was born with a head bigger than its body. Several "charm" bags were sewed and all of the Heckmans were them. The pig's body presently grew to fit the head.

Nelson Heckman, schoolboy, saw the ghost of his dead mother. The witch doctor crossed the forehead of Mrs. W. H. Kriner, distant relative of the dead woman. The spirit was seen no more. D. Rush Heckman was attacked by rheumatism. Keckler made him a "charm." The rheumatism went away.

Simon H. Heckman developed kidney trouble. More "charms" by the witch doctor. The sick man was cured.

Thus the efficacy, or the coincidence, of the witchcraft unfolded in the court room. Keckler, the doctor, is now serving seven years in jail not because his craft failed, but because, under its spell, he morally sacrificed two little girls to break the spell of evil which surrounded their neighbors.

In these days when disease is cured by colored lights and scientists tell us that light rays become bent and the universe is actually bounded by something tangible is it strange that the voodooism of the middle ages and the Puritan days should be revived? And is there "something to it?" We read, most of us, with a feeling of satisfaction, how the "witch" was stabbed to death in Calerno, Spain, for casting her "evil eye" on a neighbor's cattle, and of another "witch" in Brooklyn, N. Y. who was sent to jail for seven years after she caused the death of a man ill with pneumonia whom she forced to leave his bed to join in a procession to drive away the spirits of disease. But we also read of Henry Smith of Babylon, L. I., an old and honored citizen, who tells how he saw a "witch" woman save a scalded baby's life by "talking the fire from him."

By G. W. HOLCOMB

HE coming of a witchcraft case before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has caused judicial minds to swing back into the days of Salem—still farther back into the Dark Ages when men and women talked in awe of monstrosities.

For in the strange witchcraft case of the Cumberland Valley there were incantations, weird rites in the heart of dark woods under the influence of the new moon, charms worn o guard against evil spirits, pigs born with heads as large as their bodies, sickness that the victims attributed to "spells" placed upon them by their enemies who were linked with the Evil One, and a little boy who saw the spirit of his dead mother.

There were victims-two fair girls who were offered up as a sacrifice to the witch doctor, the high priest of amazing rites performed in the shadow of the beautiful Blue Ridge

There were followers of the belief in witchcraft who were led blindly by a fanatic faith in the teachings of this weaver of spells.

Finally there was the Witch Doctor, John Keckler, who is serving a sentence of seven years in the penitentiary. And here is the story:

Close to the Maryland line in the Great Valley which stretched from the broad Susquehanna far south to Tennessee, there nestles the pretty Pennsylvania hamlet of Lemasters. A few miles away rise the slopes of the Blue Ridge range. On all sides of the village stretch acres of rolling land cut up into fertile farms. Fine roads, rippling streams, old wooded areas containing mighty oaks lend beauty to this charming valley dotted with many old fashioned towns and scores of fine

The people are intelligent, refined, religious. It is hard to understand how, in such a land there could be implanted a belief in witcheraft or how, this belief should grow. But it

Now, a short distance from the hamlet of Lemasters there lived the Heckhan family; one maiden sister, three bachelor brothers and one brother who was a widower with a little son named Nelson.

The Heckmans owned fine farms, had money in the bank. were worth more than $100,000. The brothers and the sister were past 40 years and they all lived in the old homestead. On an adjoining farm, owned by the Heckmans, lived W. H. Kriner, his wife and his large family of children. Kriner was a distant relative of the Heckmans, that relationship dating back almost into the haze of colonial days.

Two of his children were Ada, age 12 and Grace, age 15. But they were poor. Their father owed his rich relatives $3,000, so the girls worked at odd times at the Heckman

One day there came a strange thing. A colt belonging to the Heckmans was afflicted with a disease that the veterinarian couldn't cure. From the realm of ordinary horse ailments into the sphere of the supernatural was but a step and that is how John Keckler, worker of things unseen, exorciser of witches, maker of charms was called from his home a few miles away to see the sick horse. He came. It was his opinion that the witches had been at work so he set to work, to drive them away. He muttered strange sentences. He took a piece of muslin that had never been washed and sewed it into a little bag with a piece of thread that had never been knotted. Then he wrote cabalistic signs on a piece of paper and placed the writing in the bag. He made the sign of the cross with his thumb. He quoted from the Bible. He hung the muslin bag charm above the door of the stable so that no witch might enter. He made similar charms for other doors.

The colt got well.
The faith of the Heckmans in John Keckler, witch doctor, became great. They had heard how he had worked his charms for other persons, how he had cured the sick, restored afflicted beasts, driven away witches. They sent for him again and

There was a monstrosity on the Kriner farm, a pig born with a head as large as its body. There was another pig of the same kind on another farm. The animals were so mal-formed that their puny bodies could not lift the heads from ground.

More charms, more incantations, more symbols, more battling with the Evil One and his witches. It was a desperate fight the witch doctor had ahead of him. Kriner testified that Keckler told him there had been one witch at work on the farm for 30 years, a particularly bad one. The witch doctor wanted the hog burned so that the witch could be

This time the charms were not only placed over each door but every member of the Kriner family was compelled to wear one suspended around the neck, small muslin bags from material that had never been washed, sewed with thread that had never been knotted, and the seams must never be back stitched or the spell would be broken. The pig got well.

Little Nelson Heckman's mother had died only a short time before. The boy missed her, grieved for her and wanted her to come back to him. His widowed father, his old bachelor uncles, his spinster aunt could not fill the place in that tiny aching heart. Another strange thing happened. The boy declared that going to school one day he met his mother's spirit. He was terrified. He dreaded to go to school alone after that, fearing he would again meet his dead mother. It was surely a case for the witch doctor. Keckler in the court admitted it, for when a lawyer asked, "That is one of the things you can relieve people of, visitations of ghosts?" he replied, "I make seals for that."

WITCH DOCTOR METHODS RELATED

The witch doctor had to have considerable help at this time so he called over some of the members of the Kriner family to drive away the spirit of a mother who, in life love this lonesome lad. His procedure is best shown in the official court record when Mrs. Kriner was a witness.

Q-What was the matter with Nelson? A-It seemed, they claimed, his mother would meet him out in the lane. Q-His mother was dead?

A-His mother was dead. He (Keckler) was curing so that he could go to school in peace and get rid of his crying. Q-So his mother wouldn't meet him any more?

A-Drew rings around us, made a cross on our forehead, standing in the middle of the road. He drew rings around each one of us.

-What did he do out there in the lane?

-Then he made a cross on the forehead? A-Yes, sir.

Q-How? A-With his thumb. Then he made some preambling to himself, then he repeated the Lord's prayer. -How did he draw these rings?

A-With a knife. And so it came about that the spirit mother was driven away from little Nelson.

The power and fame of Keckler the witch doctor spread Not only the Heckmans believed in him. Men and women openly declared he had cured them of strange maladies. It was whispered about that he could behold things invisible to the eyes of others. He could wander along the banks of streams and see water-cows and mermaids, it was solemnly averred. Nobody down in the Cumberland Valley had ever seen a mermaid and nobody had heard of such a spectral thing as a water-cow but that they existed and that the witch doctor met them was believed by his followers.

Still the witches could not be driven away. Now they afflicted the bodies of the Heckmans. D. Rush Heckman was troubled with a bad attack of rheumatism. The witch doctor vent to work with his charms and on the witness stand when asked if the incantations and other methods of the adept against evil spirits had helped him he replied:

"Something did; I wouldn't know what else Simon W. Heckman had kidney trouble. The witch doctor got to work on him and there was a season of strange exercises in the woods. He was asked if it had helped him

"Yes, sir, very greatly; in a very short time.

Now came the time when Keckler told who the witches were; mentioned them by name. Charles Walter a prominent attorney of Chambersburg, Pa. who was country prosecutor and who was one of the leading figures in bringing out the whole history of the remarkable witchcraft case says that one of the most uncanny and dramatic experiences in his legal career was the moment when the names of reputable women and men were brought out. It swung the hand of time straight back into another age when superstition swayed the world. Not one or two but half a dozen and more were accused by the witch doctor. There was too much good sense in community to be swayed by the false condemnation but in the narrow, superstitious circle in which Keckler ruled these ople were classed as workers of evil. They had no defense in the minds of the believers in witchcraft.

But the most astonishing thing of all is that the most of the good people who were named, died. It so interested Judge W. Rush Gillan that he leaned forward and asked a witness: 'Mrs. David Jones, Mrs. John Walters, Nathaniel Brown are all dead? Jacob Wilder is he dead?"

(In justice to the people named fictitious names are used "And he told you that these and other people were witches working on you?" "Yes, sir, they were witches." That Keckler, the witch doctor had the power to kill witches was fixed in the minds of some of those who believed in the superstition. That he had other equally powerful influences was honestly accepted. But there were plenty of witches still at work against the Heckmans he said. He alone was not strong enough to drive them away. Then came the pitiful part of the accursed thing. The victims were called forth; the two sisters Ada and Grace Kriner. For the part the witch doctor took Keckler was sent to the penitentiary for seven years. For the part they took in allowing the innocent girls to be morally sacrificed on the altar of witchcraft the Heckmans have been called upon by the courts to pay more than $15,000. It was on the appeal of the Heckmans to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania that the facts came out. In one appeal to the highest court of the state the Heckmans have lost.

The witch doctor told the credulous and superstitious converts that he could not drive away the evil spirits unless he had the help of two innocent young women. He required Grace and Ada Kriner. They must come to the Heckman house where the witch doctor had a room. They must spend the night there.

SEAL OF SILENCE TERRIFIES GIRLS

"If they will but touch the hem of my garment I can prevail against the evil ones," he announced. The Heckmans went to the Kriner home at nightfall and made the appeal. Kriner was a relative, he was a tenant on one of their farms, he owed them no money. He could not refuse their demand. Ada and Grace were taken to the homestead across the fields. They listened as the fanatic talked of the hosts of witches against whom he was battling; they saw the strange sparkle in his eyes; heard the impassioned prayers he made for divine help against emissaries of Satan. For hours they sat in the dimly lighted room, all of them under the spell of The parents had some dread of impending disaster. The mother asked the witch doctor why he wanted the girls to remain at the house that night. The reply was that they were to go to his bed and touch the hem of his garment.

They asked that no harm come to the young sisters. The witch doctor's reply was that they were as safe in his hands as in their God's. It was Emma Heckman, the spinster, who, according to the It was Emma Heckman, the spinster, who, according to the sworn testimony of the girls, took them to her room and disrobed them. Then they were cautioned under the threat that dreadful things would happen if they ever betrayed any of the secret charms which the mighty and powerful mystic intended.

The door closed behind them.

The sun was hardly breaking over the tops of the mounins when the witch doctor emerged from the room with the wo girls. He summoned the members of the Heckman family and in the cold, misty dawn a strange procession wended its ay to the dense woods in which gloom and sunlight fought, which fantastic shadows flitted.

The witch doctor repeated the same performance with ch member of the Heckman family.

mother sees the sufferer waste away. Always she hears the pitiful, faint cry. Somehow the doctor has not hit upon the one feeding formula that will restore functions and rebuild the puny body. That mother will try anything. She hears pow-wow of a hex doctor. He is sent for.

A piece of yarn is brought out. It is yarn of a certain color, has never been used, has never been washed. The seal of silence is imposed. In tense solemnity, almost in reverence the hex doctor measures the child, first from crown to toes, then around the body. Perhaps the Bible is quoted. The bit of yarn is burned. Whatever malign forces existed in the child are supposed to have passed into the yarn and have been destroyed by fire. It may be that the child dies. It may be that the child gets well. "I just said, "There is something wrong here, with this funny stuff.' I couldn't understand. I was taught to make these seals to help the stock."

"It was to drive the witches away?" he was questioned. "You can call it that way if you want." What was the purpose in boring a hole in a tree and utting hair in it?

"To make you strong."
"Whose hair did you put there?" The person I tried for. Cut it right from the crown of "How would you treat a persons who saw ghosts. How afflict poultry. The witch doctor said that he once went to the Heckman home on that errand. "The witches didn't attack the chickens?" interjected a "They were all right?"

"Wel! " replied Keckler, "they lost a good many chickens."

There is hardly a page of the testimony in the case that does not touch upon the subject of witchcraft and in the charge of Judge Gillan to the jury it is brought out strongly. He said:

"The story as told by the witnesses is this: That one John Keckler visited the home of the defendants in the capacity of the determinant of the capacity deal surprised to learn that any person in this enlightened community would have any faith in the efficacy of boring a hole in a tree, putting the hair of the afflicted person in that tree and plugging up that hole, that that would be a cure for ills. We have no right to quarral with them for their belief. We simply say we are surprised that there are people who believe that sort of thing. And when they tell you they believe in that sort of thing, have faith in it, we may not fail to understand some of the things in the case that would be inexplicable

"The witnesses tell you that in the practice of this-I don't know what he (Keckler) calls it—and in his efforts to drive away the witches, he said he needed the help of younger people, that he wasn't strong enough to do it himself; and he saw these girls. He wished that they be brought to his aid to help him work these charms or cures against the evil designs of the witches in the neighborhood. The little girls were brought into a room almost adjacent to his under the strict injunction that they must not tell anything that happened there, must not tell what was done there. If they did the efficacy of the cure would be destroyed and something terrible would happen to them."

In a few sentences the county judge has painted the real picture of something that few persons dreamed was possible

The case has aroused the attention of the whole state and ont of it may come the complete extermination of the belief in witch doctors and evil spirits. The primary indication of this is given in the conviction of John Keckler, the witch He has now begun to serve a sentence of seven years in the Eastern Penitentiary as a punishment for crimes paralleling those of the middle ages.

THOROUGHBRED * By Bruno Lessing

Wherein Fate Plays a Whimsical Prank or Two, and, for Once, Gets the Worst of It.

OTT, in moments of enthusiasm, would boast that his wife was a thoroughbred. He had once been interested in breeding horses, and the terms had retained a place in his vocabulary. He was a good natured, easy going individual, not particularly brilliant, and, above all, neither keenly analytical in his thinking processes nor finicky in his use of words. When he called his wife a thoroughbred he meant it for a compliment. The trouble about it was that he was right and never knew just how thoroughly right he was.

Those who know horses will tell you what splendid qualities ensue from long and careful breeding, such as strength, beauty, endurance, spirit, and vitality. Your poor, stodgy work horse has none of these. Yet the work horse is patient, and plods and drudges, takes things as they come with a sort of fatalistic philosophy, accepts the good of life while he stoically endures the bad, and, while he never rises to great heights, has the compensating consolation of never sinking to great depths. Whereas the thoroughbred, keyed to a high tension, is startled by his own shadow, jumps at a sound, trembles under restraint, and spends practically most of his life in a state of quivering nerves.

Mrs. Mott was a thoroughbred. Sensitive. proud, and refined, her life had, fortunately, been sheltered from every disturbing influence. Fate had dealt gently with her. She had not the faintest idea of how she would act under the stress of powerful emotion, for the reason that the depths of her emotions had never been stirred.

The Motts had been married six years, and had a single child, Lucille, who was five years old, the idol of her parents. It had been a happy marriage, or, rather, to be exact, it had been a tranquil and contented marriage. Mrs. Mott was as devoted to her husband as she felt a woman could possibly be. She loved his cheerful disposition, his kindliness, and his tenderness to herself. Probably, if you had asked her what she admired most in her husband, she would have told you that it was his trustworthiness.

From which one might have deduced that Mrs. Mott was inclined to be selfish, the quality which appealed to her most being the one which gave her the greatest comfort. Of her devotion to her child, however, there was no question., It must, furthermore, be added that Mrs. Mott was twenty-six years old, slender, and exceedingly pretty.

It all began upon an evening when Mott, detained by an engineering problem at the office of the steel company by which he was employed, telephoned to his wife that he the heighborhood. It happened that this friend-a Mrs. Morris-was giving a party that evening, and there Mrs. Mott, for the

Even as he clasped her hand Mrs. Mott discerned the manner of man he was-hand some, charming, selfish, unscrupulous, and indiscriminately amorous. His adroitness amused her. A whole volume can be expressed in a single handclasp. She smiled charmingly, and promptly dismissed

Through Elder's influence he had been promoted to a more lucrative position, and he felt under deep obligation to him. That night Elder made strenuous efforts to create a pleasing impression, and succeeded admirably. The picture that he drew of his loneliness touched her sympathy. Had he cried aloud, "It is you whom I want; only you can fill the void in my life" he could have made no clearer to her what was actually in his mind, if not in his heart. But his behavior was beyond reproach. And while she disapproved of his moral standard she could not help liking the man.

Mott gave his wife no explanation of his absence that evening, nor did she ask any questions. What she noticed, however, was that he seemed worried and ill at ease.

Mrs. Mott listened no further. She restored the telephone to its hook and sank back in her chair. She felt sick. She tried to think, but her faculties were benumbed.

"When Mr. Mott comes down," she said to the maid, "tell him I've retired. I have a wondering what it was all about, worrying because her husband had secrets which he did not share with her, fearing the worst, much she loved him, suffering all the pangs of jealousy, and, above all-and that is what happens to thoroughbreds-all a-quiver with the rage that is born of outraged pride,

The details of his entanglement-her intuition told her that it was an entanglementshe did not want to know. Whether it was the remnants of an affair antedating their marriage or some liaison he had contracted recently made no difference to her. She felt deceived and humiliated, and she was accus tomed to neither deceit nor humiliation. To reproach her husband or to demand an explanation from him never occurred to her. He had chosen not to discuss the matter with her; consequently she must maintain a dignifled if somewhat painful silence. The stress of her emotions wore upon her and showed in the pallor of her countenance and in dark

"Don't you think," suggested her husband one morning, "that you had better run off to the country for a little while-you and Lucille? You're not looking particularly rugged. Not worrying about anything, are you?"

"He'd like me to go away!" was her imme diate thought. She told him, however, that it was but a passing indisposition and that she would be all right in a few days. And then Fate, which seems to love dramatic effects, threw a bombshell into Mrs. Mott's life. The cleaner come for Mr. Mott's suit," explained the maid, "and I give it to him. And he just brought back a paper as was in

It was a bit of pink letter paper that the maid laid in Mrs. Mott's outstretched hand. and it reeked of cheap perfume. The writing swam before her eyes. In the twinkling of an instant the opening line, and then the signature seemed to leap from the paper to

"You poor, silly boy," it began, with "Just because you're married-" close upon it. And it was signed "Alice."

Almost mechanically Mrs. Mott handed it

"You had better leave it on Mr. Mott's desk," she said. And then the whole bottom dropped out of her world, and she felt that she was an entirely different creature-a being who had never existed before, exactly like Mrs. Andrew Mott to all appearances, but different inside, absolutely different. To her overwrought mind it seemed that her husband's perfidy had changed her whole nature. He had secrets from her. Very well. She would have a great secret of her own.

She dressed herself with great care, humming a gay tune the while. She felt that her mind was unusually clear and that, for the first time in her life, she saw things in their true light. As a matter of fact, she was so entirely distraught that she had not the faintest conception of her real self or her further part in her life. The curious part of it was that she did not bestow any thought

It was a surly-looking Japanese who opened the door of Elder's apartment. No. Mr. Elder was not in. But if the honorable lady would step into the sitting room his master would probably arrive in a few

The room in which Mrs. Mott found herself was furnished with exquisite taste. Perhaps, had Elder known that she was coming, he might have removed a dozen or so of the photographs of pretty women that stood upon the table and the mantel. The Japanese servant bowed before her.

"I think maybe Mr. Elder with gentleman friend across the street. I go tell him."

Left alone, Mrs. Mott sat beside the table idly drumming upon its edge with her finger tips, a faint smile upon her lips. She felt no sensation of excitement. It seemed to her that her mind was unusually alert and clear. Her husband had deceived her-that one fact stood out beyond all others-and she was not one of those to brook deception calmly. She must teach him a lesson. Whatever happened, he would never deceive her again.

She did not even think of Elder. In a physical way he possessed absolutely no attraction for her. As a matter of simple fact, she thought of nothing and no one but her own self. It was her self that had been outraged, and it was her self that must wipe out the stain. Wipe it out, perhaps, with a greater stain. She smiled at the thought, but it was a purely mechanical smile. The shock of this unaccustomed blow to her pride had in some unaccountable way dammed the flow of her natural feelings, cast a spell of lethargy over her sensibilities, and, for the moment, changed her entire nature.

The telephone suddenly rang. Mechanically, absent-mindedly, forgetting entirely where she was, she placed the receiver to her ear.

"I want to speak to Mr. Elder," came a childish voice over the wire.

For an instant it seemed to Mrs. Mott that her heart had stopped beating.

"Who is it?" she asked faintly, and she knew the answer beforehand. "I'm Lucille. Tomorrow's my birfday, and he's going to take me out to get clothes for my dolly. The receiver fell from her grasp. The walls of the room seemed to revolve in dizzying circles before her eyes. All that she saw clearly was the figure of her child kneeling upon a chair to reach the telephone in her sitting room. For a moment she felt the child's arms around her neck, and the presfeeling and instinct swept through her consciousness and almost overwhelmed her. "My God!" she cried. "What am I

Groping her way as if the room were dark, she staggered from the apartment. A low moan escaped her lins.

"O, Andrew! Andrew!" she murmured, half sobbing. She never remembered just how she reached the street. There was a taxicab passing, and she hailed it. She almost stumbled into it, gasped her address to the driver, and it started off just as Elder. with his Japanese servant running to keep pace with him, reached the door. He recognized her, gazed in stupefaction at the departing taxicab, and hastened to his apartment. Perhaps she had left a note for him.

He found the telephone receiver hanging over the edge of the table. Beside it lay Mrs. Mett's handbag. He gazed at it for a long

"Here, Otami," he said. "Wrap this up in paper and take it to Mrs. Mott's house."

It had been a narrow escape. By the time she reached her home Mrs. Mott's faculties had returned to their normal state. The tension had relaxed, her vision had cleared, and the unrealities which had filled her mind had vanished. In their place, however, had come a realizing sense of the enormity of her conduct which filled her with horror. She felt ashamed, humiliated, and afraid. Afraid that she had within her the possibility of such an outrageous outburst as the one which had nearly swept her away.

"I must be crazy!" she kept repeating to herself, over and over again. She felt an impulse to throw herself at her husband's feet and implore his forgiveness. At that moment he could have confessed to her that he had twenty mistresses, and she would not have cared. She felt that she had stultified herself to such an extent that, no matter what he did, he was vastly her superior. For the first time in her life Mrs. Mott tasted a sense of humility. Which is very disagreeable to thoroughbreds.

She decided that it would be folly to tell her husband. He could have his Alice, could have all the Alices he wanted, but it would surely make him unhappy to know that his wife was such a weakling. No, she would not tell him. What had ever possessed her, anyway? He could never understand-she could hardly understand it herself-and it was much better to try to forget it all. She would strive in every way to make him happy, she would devote the rest of her alife to atonement for that terrible impulse.

Otami, the Japanese servant, refused to give the package to the maid who came to the door. He insisted upon placing it in Mrs. Mott's hands. And when Mrs. Mott gazed into his surly face and saw, or thought she saw, a laughing gleam in his eyes, she shuddered. She tasted fear.

Of Elder she never thought. What he might say or think did not interest her. In a vague, wordless fashion, she felt that, no matter how bad he was, he must surely have airy in his nature to remain quiet. If he should presume upon the incident and make advances to her she would know how to conduct herself when the time

All that Mott observed when he came home was that his wife had recovered her former gayety and was more gracious than ever. Her nervousness and the after effects of the strain she had been through escaped his notice. He remarked upon her improved color, and Mrs. Mott, with a sigh of relief. felt that the episode had ended. And that night when it came time for Lucille to go to bed her mother almost smothered her with klases. It was Lucille who had saved her

Fate, however, seemed to take a fiendish delight in keeping the ball a rolling. The Motts' household had returned to its normal status; Mott's worries seemed to have disappeared, and his wife had become accustomed to forgetting her episode. She was no longer afraid, even, of Elder. From time to time he came to the house, and Mrs. Mott faced him without embarrassment.

She had made up her mind that if he ever referred to the incident she would say that she had called upon him for advice in regard to an investment. The trouble was that she could not bring herself to volunteer that explanation to her husband. Elder, however, never referred to the matter. He was something of a fatalist: if she wanted to come to him she would come-there was nothing to be gained by talking about it.

And so matters stood until one day the maid handed her a note. It was from Otami, the Japanese servant, asking for $10 to send

The letter was badly written. "Honorable Lady," it began. "My father and mother is in poor poverty circumstances in Japan, and I must got to send them money. Ten dollars will be enough this time. I am a good friend. Very respectfully, Otami. If you give it to the door servant I call for it."

The surly face of the Japanese, with a malicious gleam in his eyes, rose before Mrs. Mott's mental vision and made her tremble. Almost instinctively she gave the money to the maid to be handed to the Japanese. Was this to be the end of it or was she to be subjected to steady blackmail by a servant? Had she better tell Elder of it? Would it not be best to make a clean breast of the whole matter to her husband? For a week she worried over it, and then came another letter asking for $10 more, which threw her into self, over and over again. "He never could possibly deceive me as wickedly as I'm deceiving him!

And then came Fate's last prank, which upset her completely. Her maid announced a woman visitor

"She says you don't know her and she wants to see you personal."

The visitor was young, rather pleasing in appearance, and seemed intensely nervous.

"I am Mrs. Armstrong," she explained. "I'm terribly worried, and I've come to you because you're a woman, to ask you if you won't help me out. My husband works in the same office with Mr. Mott and they are close friends. I-I am anxious to get a divorce because I know my husband has deceived me, but the lawyer told me I must have evidence to prove it. Mr. Mott could give me the evidence, because he has been helping my husband out. I know that for a fact. I went to him vesterday in his office. but he refused to discuss the matter with me at all. Couldn't you help me out?"

"But what can I do?" asked Mrs. Mott, ir bewilderment. "Are you sure you are not making a mistake? I really know nothing about the matter."

"No. I am making no mistake," said the woman, bitterly. "My husband had an affair with some woman named Alice, and they had some kind of trouble in which your husband tried to help him out. I am living with my mother now, and I want a divorce. If your husband knew how terribly unhappy I was. I am sure he would help me. But he would not listen to me. If you would only greatly agitated, promised to speak to her husband about the matter. After her vis itor had gone she sat, with hands clasped. gazing blankly before her. Her husband had not deceived her at all. It was another man's affair, which probably he had had no right to discuss with her. The last vestige of excuse for her terrible conduct had van ished, and she now realized that she had only her own impulsive temper and her stupidity

And while she sat there, panic stricken, as if an abyss had opened before her feet, her husband came home. With a wild cry she threw her arms around his neck.

"O, Andrew! Andrew!" she cried. "I can't stand it! I'm going mad! It's terrible, terrible! I've got to tell you. But I'm so ashamed! So ashamed!"

He patted her hair, soothingly. He saw that she was unstrung, but attributed it to some trivial household matter. He drew her to a couch and sat beside her, holding her head upon his shoulder.

"Surest thing you know," he said. "Telling me all about it is the best cure. Now, just take your time, dearie, and then fire ahead. And don't worry. Life's too short

With her face buried upon her husband's shoulder. Mrs. Mott, falteringly, told hel

"I was simply crazy. I hardly remember how I felt or what I thought. I was like another creature, but I thought I was justified at the time. I wanted to punish you. I didn't even know that I was so terribly

She made no attempt to explain why she had gone to Elder rather than to any other man she knew. There are thoughts and impressions which no daughter of Eve has ever brought herself to divulge. With her face averted, Mrs. Mott could not see the frown that gathered upon her husband's forehead or the tense drawing together of

"Did Elder ever say anything-do anything-? "O. no! No. Never! Not a single word. But everybody can see the kind of man he is-I would have gone to anybody. I was desperate-insane. I'm the only one to

And at that moment the maid announced that Otami, the Japanese servant, was at the

"Don't move!" he said, sharply. When he returned, a few minutes later, his wife saw that there was blood upon his hand. She

"Nothing to bother about," said Mott, now thoroughly calm. "It's merely from his nose. He won't bother us any more."

He stood for a while, gazing at his wife and scratching his head.

"Armstrong is rid of his Alice," said he, "and if you will be so good as to leave the matter alone and not pass judgment on it, I'm sure everything will be patched up in

"Yes, dear," said Mrs. Mott meekly "As to the other matter, I guess point number one is that we had better cut out

"I was thinking-" began Mrs. Mott. "Yes," said her husband. "That's point number two. I wish you would cut out a lot of that thinking and let me do it for

Then Mrs. Mott began to cry-not wildly or hysterically-but in an orderly, feminine fashion, which immediately made her husband feel he was entirely in the wrong. But when he had kissed her tears away and had told her that she could do all the thinking she wanted, she threw her arms about

"No, dear," she said, "you're perfectly right. As long as you love me I want you to

"I always said you were a thoroughbred," said he. And he was right. Only, he never will know how right he was.

ing it, had lost faith in herself and some self-respect. such girls, some mere flappers and some mature women. They trade on their femininity in their relations with men.

Practically all who do not live at home with their parents have regular employment. Most of such girls would scorn to accept money from a masculine admirer, but gifts-well, that is another matter. And, as one young man said to me: "In this day a designing brain may hide under any pretty bonnet or behind any haby stare."

Salamanders have many motives. Ambition spurs some, but the desire for a good time, for the comforts, the luxuries and the beautiful things of life-things which ordinarily would be beyond the reach of their pocketbooks-impels by far the largest number.

I have known many kinds of salamanders, some of them actuated to play with the fires of men's souls by strange reasons. But I have never known of a single instance where salamandering profited a woman in the long run. "Don't salamander." is a bit of advice every mother should give her daughter when first she leaves the parental roof. And they are words which might well be framed and hung on the dressing table of every girl-yes, and every woman-in America.

There was little Josette, who had not yet entered her twenties when I knew her. But she was a full-fledged salamander, usually having meals as her objective. Petite and colored as is a cherub, her beauty and her dancing were attracting attention that seemed sure to bring her stellar rôles in her profession.

She frequented the big hotels patronized by her masculine acquaintances. She was and adept at looking half starved.

But one day my little dancer miscalculated or else the man she selected was too engrossed in his own affairs. Anyway, he turned a corner without noticing her and she, unable to catch herself, fell to the pavement and was knocked unconscious. A policeman picked her up and sent her to a hospital. One of the small bones in her foot had been broken and-she never danced again professionally. A budding career that might have been great was ended because a foolish little girl salamandered.

Salamandering cannot be confined to any walk of life or to any social stratum. Almost every one knows the girl who will step out of a theater on a fine clear night, tuck her skirts about her, sidestep an imaginary pool, look up at the sky, voice a fear of rain and inwardly wonder if the escort will call a cab. That is salamandering-of a sort.

But it isn't salamandering of the kind a girl I knew employed when she went shopping in a taxicab and, after using the car all afternoon, ordered the chauffeur to stop in front of a building from which she knew a male acquaintance would be leaving shortly. Of course, she hailed him and let him take her home and-pay the bill.

Nor is it of the sort employed by Etta, another salamander I know, when she tells a man that she could get a better theatrical engagement if she had better clothes with which to make an impression and listens coyly for him to tell her to order new ones and send him actress. She became a salamander by profes-

Jennie, at this stage of ber life, undoubtedly would have been hurt had any one suggested that she would take money from any of the men she burned at her fire, but she would take a drop curtain for her "act." And in that "drop" lies the story of her later life.

After a while, just as sure as there came a day when Jennie had felt a pressing need for funds, there came a day when the latest of her masculine contingent found her in tears over her "drop curtain." According to the story she would tell she had been offered a wonderful vaudeville opportunity, one such as she had been waiting for for months, but one which was contingent upon her obtaining a curtain the cost of which was $1,000.

Since she affected only the sons of the rich, sympathy, ordinarily, was ready. At first she actually used to buy a curtain, only to sell it later at half its value to some really hard working vaudevillian because she had taken to salamandering"

But recently she is finding the road of the salamander a more and more rocky one. There are lines around her eyeseyes which have hardened-and I'm afraid of the future for Jennie. Many women are salamanders, however, for the sheer joy of the game. They play with the fires of men's passions as a daredevil aviator does with death. For them there is the same joy in seeing how near they can go to the flames and yet escape unscorched that there is for the aviator in playing tricks with fate. Many married women are of this stamp.

Such a one was Mrs. X. An effulgently beautiful woman of thirty-four, she liked nothing better than "an adventure." She had been married twelve years and really loved her husband. They were both business people, employed in separate offices.

She was capable and thoroughly trustworthy in a business way. But let a new man, particularly a youthful and attractive one, go into her office and her violet-blue eyes fairly danced with antici-

A covert look or a bantering remark made up her preliminary attack and flattery was her strongest weapon of offense-her heavy artillery. Men liked her and spoke of her as clever and discerning. Her big husband smiled tolerantly en what he called her vagaries. He didn't want to be selfish, he told her, when she pointed out to him that contact with other men broadened her and gave her new viewpoints. But with her it was always the game—the excitement of it.

"I want danger in my adventures," she told me. "I want to be afraid of the man I'm playing with-afraid of his next move. And I always want to keep one move ahead of him. I want to see the man, the man himself-and not the veneer with which civilization has surrounded him. And then I want to tame him. To me there is a joy in prov ing that my weapons of defense are stronger than those of man in offense

But one day she took as a plaything a man who was her husband's chum and the big, kindly husband objected. She insisted-there was no wrong, she said. Well, they're divorced now and she is perhaps the most unhappy woman I know. But as a salamander she was one of the most dangerous.

WHEN MORY MET

They Find They Have the Same Sort of Temperament, and Agree on Prohibition--- So the Prima Donna Impresario Brightens the Corner of the Cincinnati Tabernacle Where the Revivalist Battles With the Devil.

By ELMER H. DRESSMAN.

ARY GARDEN met Billy Sunday the other day and so enthusiastic over the regivalist did the Chicago Opera Company head become that she accepted his invitation to attend one of his tabernacle services in Cincinnati-and hit the sawdust trail in effect if not actually.

The diva was in Cincinnati for a performance and Billy is there conducting an eight weeks' revival. Both had heard much of each other and so a meeting was arranged.

The two famous exponents of pep and punch were stopping at the same hotel and Billy called upon Mary before his afternoon sermon.

Attired in a neat gray suit and wearing the trick cloth hat that tops the famous head, Billy was ushered into Mary's parlor. A minute or two later in came Miss Garden with a rush, and upon being introduced to him pulled him down beside her on the lounge and began a tete-a-tete, which lasted for some twenty minutes.

Sunday, a bit bashful at first to all appearances, revived soon enough, and the gabfest was one to amuse the reporter and artist who had just finished interviewing Mary when Billy called and I," said Mary, and Billy agreed. They talked about singing and preaching and compared notes

"I want you to come to my home town, Winona Lake. Ind., next summer and sing at my tabernacle there," said Sunday. "I'll guarantee you

Mary was sorry, but said she hoped to go West in the summer and ride bronchos and get away from fashion and convention.

This, while wearing six jade and diamond bracelets, several emerald and diamond rings, a string of pearls long enough to rope one of the aforementioned bronchos and clothes costly enough to build a battleship, almost.

"You tell them, don't you," said Mary, "that the only thing-g-g to do in life is to walk the straight path? Ah-h-h, that is quite right."

Pretty soon it developed that Mary is an ardent Prohibitionist, as is Billy. So the bond of friendship was strengthened.

"Mary," said Sunday-he called her that because she told him to when he asked her whether to say Mary or Miss Garden-"Mary, I always did like you, but now I like you better than ever. I want you to be sure and meet Mrs. Sunday when she gets back in town from a trip home."

"Ah-h-h!" said Mary. "Yes-s-s, indeed, I shall call upstairs. Do you know that what makes me disgusted is that people say, 'Huh! you take

"And you didn't introduce yourself?" said Billy. "Well, you must come and hear me while in

"Oh, I will," said Miss Garden. "Maybe tomorrow."

And she did.

Next day the singer with her sister and secretary, appeared at the tabernacle as the invocation was being delivered. They stood with bowed heads and then took seats at one side.

When Sunday mounted the platform he saw Mary, dressed in sable and silk, with a brilliant red turban, pearls and a cane, in his audience, and promptly told the 5,000 persons there about

"That's Mary Garden over there," he said, and Miss Garden, laughing, arose and bowed amid a storm of applause. Then he invited her up on the platform; she didn't want to, but finally started up the stairway. Then the crowd applauded more than ever and Mary seemed to be stage frightened, for she ran down again and took her seat, laughing and coquettishly shaking her head to the renewed invitation.

During the sermon she leaned forward, her white gloved hands clasping a red hymn book and her cane.

When Homer Rodeheaver sang a solo she applauded and then when all sang "Brighten the Corner Where You Are" and "Will There Be Any Stars in My Orown?" she stood and joined her famous voice with the voices of 5,000 others.

She pronounced the talk "immense." When

Sunday, enveloped in a heavy overcoat to insure against his taking cold after the exertions of a gymnastic sermon, hopped out of his taxicab at the hotel, there was Mary's party returning too. She ran toward him and laughing and seizing his arm complimented the evangelist on his effort, threatening trouble, however, if he embarrassed her again as he did that afternoon.

Just about that time Harold McCormick, "patron saint" of the Chicago Opera Company, who had just arrived in town, and Redmand Stephens, Chicago attorney, happened along, so Mary introduced them to Billy and they all headed for the hotel's soda fountain.

Mary and Billy autographed sketches made of them at the tabernacle and hotel and told what they thought of each other, in writing,

Miss Garden, however, protests she wasn't "converted" by Sunday as she didn't have any sins to hit the trail for.

As we recall that Mary, in an interview some time ago said:

"Mind you, I do not say that I have lived the life of a saint, of a nun, of a debutante, for I have lived life. I have known great joy; I have been in the depths of tremendous sorrows.

"What appeals to me most of all in any man is intellect. I am cerebral, purely and simply cerebral, when it comes to judging men. Let me meet a man, no matter what his position, wealth, any of those things, and if I find there is not an intellectual response between us I kiss my fingers to him. He is finished as far as my interest in him goes. Why not?

"Women are fools to waste their time on men of mediocre type. Titles in themselves have no particular meaning for me. I have known many titled foreigners, known them well, but I was not interested in the possessors of them just because they were titled, but in every instance because they were cultivated, intellectual men.

"I find in Europe that most men can interest any woman for half an hour at least, for they are men who have given much time to the pursuit of art, music, language, letters; but unfortunately, among our own countrymen the poor dears are too busy making fortunes for their women folk to spend to try to make themselves
